CHAIN STORE LEASES SITE HERE

SCHMIDT BUILDING WILL BECOME GREEN STORES CO. BRANCH

Organization Is Given 99-
Year Lease At 13-17
E. Main St.

Announcement that the Schmidt Bldg., 13-17 E. Main St., owned by H. E. Schmidt and occupied by the C. A. Weaver clothing store and Styles shoe store, has been leased to Green Stores, Inc., Boston, Mass., for a period of ninety-nine years, renewable forever, was made Tuesday.

The Boston firm operates a chain of 5, 10 and 25 cent stores in the vicinity of Boston. The organization is not well known in this state. It is understood the firm intends to make an invasion of Ohio and expects to eventually locate twelve chain stores in this state.

Lease of the Xenia building is thought to be the first move made in the expansion program. The deal was completed Monday, both parties to the transaction being represented by Zinn and Robbins, Columbus real estate firm. Two attorneys represented the realtors here for the actual signing of the lease. Attorney Marcus Shoup represented Mr. Schmidt.

The rental for the building is graduated over the period of years. Under the agreement, the Boston firm will pay $3,600 rental the first two years; $4,800 the next twenty years; $5,100 the following thirty years; and $6,000 every year thereafter until the lease expires or in the event it is renewed.

The stipulation is made that the building must be improved two years from now at a cost of not less than $12,000. The firm retains the right to purchase the structure after October 1, 1950 for $125,000, should it care to exercise this privilege.

The lease held by C. A. Weaver, originally assigned to Oscar McDorman and C. H. Humphrey, former owners of the clothing store, does not expire until October 1, 1930. Lester Stiles has no lease.

For this reason the clothing store may not vacate the room in which it is now located until the expiration of the lease. The chain store organization, when it takes possession, is expected to practically rebuild the entire three-story structure, throwing the two store rooms together for the chain store occupancy. Work is not expected to start until the store rooms are vacated.

The second floor at present houses the law offices of Attorneys Marcus Shoup and James Kyle. The third floor, consisting of lodge rooms, is empty.

H. D. Kittinger is president of the Boston organization. Sebastian Kresge, Detroit, operator of a large chain of 5 and 10 cents stores, is vice president and P. M. Leavitt, treasurer.

The C. A. Weaver clothing store will continue in business at its present location until it takes effect in 1930, the owner announced Tuesday. Styles shoe store will also continue indefinitely until the chain store decides to take over the building.

HEAD OF ATHEISTIC SOCIETY GUILTY OF ANNOYING STRATION

Accused Of Sending Nude
Pictures To Gotham
Pastor.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Charles Lee Smith, president of the Association for the Advancement of Atheism, today awaited sentence, following conviction in special sessions court yesterday of sending "annoying and atheistic" letters and literature to Dr. John Roach Straton, noted fundamentalist leader. Smith is to be sentenced Monday, and is under $500 bail.

The trial yesterday shed new light on the personal feud which has been in progress between the two men for many months. Smith, an attorney, cross-examined Dr. Straton himself. He asked if it were not true that the clergyman is prejudiced against atheism.

"I am very pitiful for them and have no prejudices," Dr. Straton answered. Smith also testified, and denied that Dr. Straton had warned him to discontinue sending his literature through the mail to the minister. He admitted sending pamphlets to the minister, dealing with atheism and birth control, adding that "I wanted to convert Dr. Straton to atheism and sex sanity, which would be a great advantage to the cause."

Smith said he received large quantities of religious pamphlets and had never thought of protesting such propaganda. Asked why he had sent nude pictures, from a magazine, to the clergyman, Smith answered "I wanted to appeal to his atheistic side, if he had any."

Due to the present peasant uprising in Rumania, who are demanding that the present Premier resign and Julius Maniu, man of their own choosing, succeed him, it is again rumored the efforts are being made to return Prince Carol (inset), exiled heir to the throne of Rumania, into power in place of his little son, King Michael.

ANDREW JACKSON, PROMINENT GREENE COUNTIAN DIES TUESDAY

Well Known Business Man And Politician Succumbs
To Infirmities Of Age; Served Two Terms
In Legislature

Andrew Jackson, 84, prominent Greene County business man, politician and former legislator, died at his home in Cedarville at 12:05 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Death was due to the infirmities of age although he possessed remarkable health until the beginning of his fatal illness several weeks ago. Since then he had remained conscious to the last but his condition gradually grew weaker until his death.

Mr. Jackson enjoyed a long and interesting career in business and politics, and because of these and other interests was known all over Ohio. He was born in the old Jackson homestead at Clark's Run, west of Cedarville, December 25, 1843 the son of General Robert and Minerva Eddy Jackson, prominent residents of that community and was the last of a family of twelve children, of which he was the seventh born.

The Jackson family came to this county in 1814 when Mr. Jackson's grandfather and a grandmother, Robert and Elizabeth Jackson moved here from Pennsylvania. Robert Jackson was a native of Scotland and was a full cousin of Andrew Jackson, colorful American pioneer figure and seventh President of the United States.

Andrew Jackson was eleven years of age when his parents moved to Xenia. After finishing school here he entered the employ of Merriell and Co., dry goods merchants, remaining here until the fall of 1861 when he went to Michigan and took a course in civil engineering and bookkeeping. Returning to Xenia in the following spring he resumed his connection with Merriell and Co., as bookkeeper remaining here until August, 1862, when he enlisted in Company H, 94th Ohio Volunteer Infantry and went to the front.

His first skirmish was August 31 at Tate's Ferry, Ky., and in October he was wounded in the left shoulder at the battle of Perryville. He was able to participate in the bloody battle of Stone's River two months later and later took part in the Tullahoma campaign, going on through the South and taking part in such battles as Dug Gap, Chickamauga, Lookout Mountain, Mission Ridge, Resaca, Dallas, Kennesaw Mountain, Smyrna Camp Grounds, Chattahoochee, Richer, Peach Tree Creek, the siege of Atlanta, Jonesboro, Bentonville and was present when Johnson surrendered on April 26, 1865. He was mustered out of service June 5 of that year. During a part of the last year of his service he was detailed as chief clerk to the inspector-general of the First Brigade, First Division of the Fourteenth Army Corps.

After the war Mr. Jackson returned home and was appointed assistant civil engineer for the Cincinnati Hamilton and Dayton Railroad. A year later he resigned to become engineer and private secretary to the president of the Cincinnati and Zanesville Railroad in Cincinnati. While with this railroad he was promoted to the position of general ticket agent and pay-

MELLON AMPLIFIES STATEMENT HOOVER HAS PENNSYLVANIA

Believes Secretary Can Win Race If Nominated

WASHINGTON, May 15.—The capital wrote Pennsylvania's seventy-nine votes in the Kansas City convention into the Hoover column today.

Almost the last lingering doubt that the Mellon-Vare organization will go solidly for Hoover was dispelled today by Secretary Mellon's amplification of his Philadelphia statement.

"I don't see any reason for any doubt as to what I meant," said the secretary. "I spoke plain English. I think Mr. Hoover can win if he is nominated, and I think he would make a good president. Many things can happen between now and the convention, and for that reason it was thought unwise to make any final commitment so far in advance."

The one thing that apparently can switch Pennsylvania from Hoover, it was indicated, would be for President Coolidge to consent to stand again. And that is a very remote possibility, not only in Mr. Mellon's opinion, but in the opinion of every politician in Washington.

Mr. Mellon has had numerous callers since he returned to the capital. To them he has explained that with President Coolidge out of it he doesn't believe the Kansas City convention can logically go to any other man than Hoover.

He considers that the party must go to the country in the approaching campaign on the record of the Coolidge administration, and he believes it would be entirely illogical for the convention to nominate a candidate who has disagreed with Coolidge policies as have both Lowden and Dawes. The defeatist talk of the anti-Hoover allies hasn't impressed Mr. Mellon much. In discussing the record of the campaign, Mr. Mellon sagely observed that in the heat of a pre-convention fight there were usually harsh words and dissension, but that opposition usually evaporates after the convention. It was true of the Garfield campaign, he observed, and he believes it will be true of the approaching campaign.

FRIENDS OF BISHOP JONES PLANNING TO HALT HIS TRANSFER

New Ruling Would
Change Locations Of
All Bishops

Unless the good offices of his friends are successful, Bishop J. H. Jones, Wilberforce, for eight years head of the Third Episcopal District of the African M. E. Church, will be transferred.

This became known here when the General Conference of the A. M. E. Church, in session in Chicago, voted in favor of a resolution offered by Joseph Gomez, Detroit, Mich., for the transfer of all bishops to other districts.

The resolution was the occasion of considerable controversy in the conference, but carried by a vote of 641 to 293. Its passage means that all bishops, at least one of whom has held his present district for sixteen years, will be transferred to other districts at the close of this episcopal year.

Because of his work in behalf of Wilberforce University, especially in helping to finance the institution, friends of Bishop Jones are hoping to force through an amendment exempting him from the general rule. If this effort fails Bishop Jones will be transferred to new territory although he is expected to continue to make his residence in Wilberforce, where he has spent many years of his life.

The controversy over the transfer of the bishops was one of three scheduled before the conference, scheduled before the motion to remove Ira Bryant, Nashville, Tenn., layman and general officer and head of the Sunday School department, from the episcopal committee. The motion was adopted on the grounds that only ministers should be members of the committee.

The third controversy is scheduled to take place either Tuesday or Wednesday over the election of the bishops. It is generally conceded that the Rev. R. R. Wright, editor of the Christian Recorder, of Philadelphia, Pa., will be elected without much opposition.

Bishop Jones is attending the conference. His son, Gilbert H. Jones, president of Wilberforce, attended sessions last week, came home Saturday night but returned to Chicago Monday night.

COURTNEY WILL TRY ATLANTIC FLIGHT

LONDON, May 15.—Capt. Frank T. Courtney, British ace, is expected to hop off for America in a flying boat just as soon as weather conditions permit, it was learned this afternoon. Courtney has been making secret preparations for the flight and is said to have his arrangements practically perfected. There will be three persons in the plane.

It is believed that Courtney will follow the same route he planned for his flight last year. At that time he got no further than the Azores, due to storms. He expects to land at the Azores for fuel and then hop off on a non stop flight to Newfoundland.

COMBINED AIRLINE AND TRAIN SERVICE TO BECOME REALITY

Columbus Is Station On
Proposed Fast Travel
Route

NEW YORK, May 15.—Forty-eight hour service from coast to coast for the traveling public of the United States will soon be a reality.

Announcement is imminent, it became known today, of the organization of a transcontinental air and railroad system, capitalized at $5,000,000, which will undertake to cut down the time it now takes to cross the country.

Linked in the new organization are the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Atchafalaya and Santa Fe Railroad, the National Air Transport and the Boeing and Western Air Transport Companies. The object of the company will be to provide a regular forty-eight to fifty-two hour passenger service from New York to San Francisco. The regular schedule from New York to Los Angeles will require forty-eight hours. Later the service is to be extended to San Francisco.

Passengers will be carried on trains at night and on planes in the daytime.

The new train-plane organization will be headed by C. M. Keys, president of the Curtis Aeroplane and Motor Company. Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was approached to head the company when it was in a formative stage but declined. It is understood that he explained that while he saw in such a combination of services the swift advancement of aviation he reiterated his frequently expressed intention of not becoming financially interested in any individual aircraft company, at least not for the present.

Present plans call for the following method of traveling: passengers bound for the west coast, will entrain from New York to Columbus, Ohio, fly from there to Wichita, Kansas, sleep on a train to a point in New Mexico, and then fly to Los Angeles. Plane-train service from Columbus to points south and northwest is planned as soon as the trans-continental route is established.

Financing of the new company is in the hands of Hayden, Stone and Company, Blair and Company, Knight Glamble and Dysart of St. Louis, J. C. Willson of Louisville and other banking concerns.

The standard scheduled time for the transportation of air mail across the United States today is thirty-one hours. It is upon this swift service that the new traffic service is to be built up.

No definite date has been set for the inauguration of the new transportation system.

The tentative schedule which has been worked out, however, calls for the passenger to go aboard a limited train at New York City at six o'clock in the evening. He arrives in Columbus at about eight the next morning. There he will be driven to the air depot where he will board a multi-motored passenger air liner, built for a cruising speed of more than 100 miles an hour and equipped with restaurant service furnished by the Fred Harvey Restaurant System.

At Wichita, the passenger will leave the plane and board a west-bound limited of the Atchafalaya, which will be on the train through the night, changing once more to a plane in New Mexico. At five o'clock in the afternoon he will land at the Los Angeles airport.

An east-to-west schedule, equally fast, has been worked out although details have not been revealed.

"There is no dearth of passenger business for air lines," said Colonel Paul Henderson, president of the National Air Transport, this morning. "The passenger travel on air lines has come a great deal faster than we expected and much faster than we have been able to handle it. The business of the future is most promising."

Carrie Bellet, Cleveland, O., aviatrix, hopes to be the first woman to successfully complete a transatlantic flight. She has 100 hours of flying to her credit and has announced her attempt for late July or August. Miss Bellet plans hopping off from Cleveland for Le Bourget airport, Paris, France.

DUGAN APPEAL LOST IN SUPREME COURT; REVERSAL REFUSED

Opinion Read By Taft
Sustains Ruling Of
Mayor's Court

Michael J. Dugan, proprietor of a pool parlor and soft drink establishment, N. Whiteman St., who was convicted of a liquor charge by Mayor John W. Prugh, last Monday in an appeal to the United States Supreme Court for reversal on the grounds that the mayor was without jurisdiction to hear the case and was financially interested because the city would receive a part of the fine.

The contention of City Solicitor J. A. Finney, representing the state, that there was no similarity between this case and the Tumeys case, which resulted in Ohio's system of justice courts being declared unconstitutional a year ago, was upheld by the Supreme Court. Chief Justice Taft read the opinion.

The case was the first of its kind to be heard by the Supreme Court since the Tumeys decision. Dugan was convicted in 1926 and carried his appeal to the Supreme Court.

His counsel, Attorney F. L. Johnson, argued that the mayor of Xenia was not qualified to preside over a criminal hearing because he had advanced to his office from that of city commissioner and that the Ohio law required the election of judicial officers.

It was also charged that the mayor was financially interested in the extent of the fine because the city would benefit from part of the amount.

Attorney Finney, in answer, contended that the mayor received no fees and the mere fact that the city would profit from the fine was no evidence of his financial interest.

The appeal was heard April 10 but a final decision was not handed down until Monday. Dugan was originally fined $1,000 and costs for possessing liquor.

HOOVER AND SMITH CAMPAIGNS PROBED

WASHINGTON, May 15.—The activities of the national organization behind Herbert Hoover's drive for the Republican presidential nomination was to be investigated today by the senate presidential committee.

George B. Lockwood, one of the directing heads of Hoover's campaign, was summoned to the witness stand. Committee members expected to learn from Lockwood how Hoover gained delegates in many southern states where primaries were not held.

The campaign of Governor Al Smith of New York, for the Democratic nomination, will be investigated tomorrow. William F. Kinney, New York contractor, who advanced $70,000 to Smith's cause, was subpoenaed to appear tomorrow, along with four other Smith workers.

PUPIL TRAPPED IN GIRLS' DORMITORY ON COLLEGE CAMPUS

Two Others Injured; Believe Girl Fainted
Trying To Escape

SPRINGFIELD, O., May 15.—One co-ed was burned to death, and three others slightly injured, in an early morning spectacular fire which partially destroyed Woodlawn Hall, small dormitory which houses twenty-two young women, on the campus of the Wittenberg College here.

Hilda Sipe, freshman, of Shelby, Ohio, was burned to death when she failed to escape from the burning building. College authorities expressed the belief that Miss Sipe fainted when trying to escape. The body was recovered by firemen.

First reports that said Miss Alice Olde, of Detroit, was seriously burned in the blaze were said to be untrue by the college authorities. Miss Olde is nervous and suffering from shock, the university physician said.

Miss Mary Levensood, of Reading, Pa., suffered a broken arm when she stumbled as she was fleeing from the blazing hall. She is confined in the university hospital.

Miss Helen MacClain, daughter of former Mayor John MacClain, of Troy, O., sprained both legs when she half-said and half-jumped down the fire escape leading from a second story window.

The students fled from the structure partially clothed. Other buildings on the campus were deserted when the fire broke out and the reports circulated that Miss Sipe was in the burning building. It was with difficulty that firemen restrained some of the men students from going in search of the victim. The fire was discovered about two o'clock. It is believed to have started in the public reception hall of the dormitory. Authorities or firemen could place no theory as to the origin of that fatal blaze.

Though the whole student body crowded around the burning hall no evidence of excitement or hysteria was manifested, even by the women students.

Miss Sipe was said to have died from inhaling the flames. The young woman was taken to a teaching hospital at the college. After the body was removed by firemen it was immediately taken to a funeral home in the city from where it will be sent to Shelby, according to college authorities.

All of the other young ladies escaped through the windows. Some are reported to have jumped from the second story, but no serious injuries resulting from accident of this kind were reported.

Loss of the building was estimated at $12,000. It is partially covered by insurance.

BELIEVE NINE DIED WHEN FISHING BOAT DESTROYED IN LAKE

Bodies Of Victims Are Sought; One Lives To
Tell Story

GREENVILLE, Me., May 15.—Bodies of nine citizens of Brockton, Mass., and their Maine woods guide were sought in the lower reaches of Moosehead Lake today by Sheriff A. G. Rodgers and a party of searchers in a motorboat.

Meanwhile, the lone survivor of the expedition of amateur salmon fishermen, Captain James E. Lays of the Brockton police department, told of the terrible North Woods tragedy.

Exhausted, but believed to be on the road to recovery, his right arm still numb from contact with the frigid water, Captain Lays described the frantic efforts to clear the motorboat of water, the call of the skipper to "get out the life preservers" and how he and Dr. David Bridgwood, eye and ear specialist of Brockton, attempted what they believed was an act of sacrifice—a leap overboard to lighten the fast sinking craft.

Besides Dr. Bridgwood, last seen by Captain Lays swimming shoreward, the lost were: Fire Chief William F. Daley, of Brockton; Sheriff Earl P. Blake of Plymouth County, Mass.; Dr. Arthur F. Peterson, former Brockton city physician; John Sandberg, manufacturer of Brockton; Dr. Frank M. Berg of Brockton; Fred Dahlberg, highway commissioner of Brockton; Knute S. Salander, Brockton business man and Sam Buddin, of this town, Maine woods guide and skipper of the ill-fated lake craft.

The one thing that apparently can switch Pennsylvania from Hoover, it was indicated, would be for President Coolidge to consent to stand again. And that is a very remote possibility, not only in Mr. Mellon's opinion, but in the opinion of every politician in Washington.

Mr. Mellon has had numerous callers since he returned to the capital. To them he has explained that with President Coolidge out of it he doesn't believe the Kansas City convention can logically go to any other man than Hoover.

He considers that the party must go to the country in the approaching campaign on the record of the Coolidge administration, and he believes it would be entirely illogical for the convention to nominate a candidate who has disagreed with Coolidge policies as have both Lowden and Dawes. The defeatist talk of the anti-Hoover allies hasn't impressed Mr. Mellon much. In discussing this phase of the campaign, Mr. Mellon sagely observed that in the heat of a pre-convention fight there were usually harsh words and dissension, but that opposition usually evaporates after the convention.

It was true of the Garfield campaign, he observed, and he believes it will be true of the approaching campaign.

FRIENDS OF BISHOP JONES PLANNING TO HALT HIS TRANSFER

New Ruling Would
Change Locations Of
All Bishops

Unless the good offices of his friends are successful, Bishop J. H. Jones, Wilberforce, for eight years head of the Third Episcopal District of the African M. E. Church, will be transferred.

This became known here when the General Conference of the A. M. E. Church, in session in Chicago, voted in favor of a resolution offered by Joseph Gomez, Detroit, Mich., for the transfer of all bishops to other districts.

The resolution was the occasion of considerable controversy in the conference, but carried by a vote of 611 to 203. Its passage means that all bishops, at least one of whom has held his present district for sixteen years, will be transferred to other districts at the close of this episcopal year.

Because of his work in behalf of Wilberforce University, especially in helping to finance the institution, friends of Bishop Jones are hoping to force through an amendment exempting him from the general rule. If this effort fails Bishop Jones will be transferred to new territory although he is expected to continue to make his residence in Wilberforce where he has spent many years of his life.

The controversy over the transfer of the bishops was one of three scheduled before the conference. The first was over the motion to remove Ira Bryant, Nashville, Tenn., layman and general officer and head of the Sunday School department, from the episcopal committee. The motion was adopted on the grounds that only ministers should be members of the committee.

The third controversy is scheduled to be placed either Tuesday or Wednesday over the election of the bishops. It is generally conceded that the Rev. R. R. Wright, editor of the Christian Recorder, of Philadelphia, Pa., will be elected without much opposition.

Bishop Jones is attending the conference. His son, Gilbert H. Jones, president of Wilberforce, attended sessions last week, came home Saturday night but returned to Chicago Monday night.

COURTNEY WILL TRY ATLANTIC FLIGHT

LONDON, May 15.—Capt. Frank T. Courtney, British ace, is expected to hop off for America in a flying boat just as soon as weather conditions permit. It was learned this afternoon, Courtney has been making secret preparations for the flight and is said to have his arrangements practically perfected. There will be three persons in the plane.

It is believed that Courtney will follow the same route he planned for his flight last year. At that time he got no further than the Azores, due to storms. He expects to land at the Azores for fuel and then hop off on a non-stop flight to Newfoundland.

The plane will be equipped with wireless.

COMBINED AIRLINE AND TRAIN SERVICE TO BECOME REALITY

Columbus Is Station On
Proposed Fast Travel
Route

NEW YORK, May 15.—Forty-eight hour service from coast to coast for the traveling public of the United States will soon be a reality.

Announcement is imminent, it became known today, of the organization of a transcontinental air and railroad system, capitalized at $5,000,000, which will undertake to cut down the time it now takes to cross the country.

Linked in the new organization are the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Atchafalaya Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad, the National Air Transport and the Boeing and Western Air Transport Companies. The object of the company will be to provide a regular forty-eight to fifty-two hour passenger service from New York to San Francisco. The regular schedule from New York to Los Angeles will require forty-eight hours. Later the service is to be extended to San Francisco.

Passengers will be carried on trains at night and on planes in the daytime. The new train-plane organization will be headed by C. M. Keys, president of the Curtis Aeroplane and Motor Company, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh will be approached to head the company when it was in a formative stage but declined. It is understood that he explained that while he saw in such a combination of services the swift advancement of aviation he resented his frequently expressed intention of not becoming financially interested in any individual aircraft company, at least not for the present.

Present plans call for the following method of traveling: passengers bound for the west coast will travel from New York to Columbus, Ohio, by train, then to Wichita, Kansas, sleep on a train to a point in New Mexico, and then fly to Los Angeles. Plane-train service from Columbus to points south and northwest is planned as soon as the trans-continental route is established.

Planning of the new company is in the hands of Hayden, Stone and Company, Blair and Company, Knight Glamble and Dysart of St. Louis, J. C. Willson of Louisville and other banking concerns. The standard scheduled time for the transportation of air mail across the United States today is thirty-one hours. It is upon this swift service that the new traffic service is to be built up.

No definite date has been set for the inauguration of the new transportation system. The tentative schedule which has been worked out, however, calls for the passenger to get aboard a limited train at the Pennsylvania station in New York City at six o'clock in the evening. He arrives in Columbus at about eight the next morning. There he will be driven to the air depot where he will board a multi-motored passenger air liner, built for a cruising speed of more than 100 miles an hour and equipped with restaurant service furnished by the Fred Harvey Restaurant System.

An east-to-west schedule, equally fast, has been worked out although details have not been revealed.

There is no dearth of passenger business for air lines," said Colonel Paul Henderson, president of the National Air Transport, this morning. "The passenger travel on air lines has come a great deal faster than we expected and much faster than we have been able to handle. The business of the future is most promising."

MANIAC ATTACKS FLYER WITH HAMMER WHILE 2,000 FEET HIGH

PONTIAC, Mich., May 15.—Clarence Frechette, 24, of Pontiac, was under technical arrest and held for mental observation at a hospital here today following his maniacal attack in mid-air on Harry Anderson, 28-year-old aviator, causing him to crash from a height of 2,000 feet.

Anderson and his mad passenger were dragged from the wreckage of the plane and rushed to the city hospital by spectators who watched the weird nose-dive to earth. The condition of both men was reported as grave.

Frechette represented himself to Anderson as an "exhibition pilot and parachute tester." He asked Anderson to take him up. When they had attained a height of 2,000 feet, Frechette produced a hammer and swung repeated blows at the pilot.

Plans Ocean Hop

Carrie Bellet, Cleveland, O., aviatrix, hopes to be the first woman to successfully complete a transatlantic flight. She has 100 hours of flying to her credit and has announced her attempt for late July or August. Miss Bellet plans hopping off from Cleveland for Le Bourget airport, Paris, France.

DUGAN APPEAL LOST IN SUPREME COURT; REVERSAL REFUSED

Opinion Read By Taft
Sustains Ruling Of
Mayor's Court

Michael J. Dugan, proprietor of a pool parlor and soft drink establishment, N. Whiteman St., who was convicted of a liquor charge by Mayor John W. Prugh, last Monday in an appeal to the United States Supreme Court for reversal on the grounds that the mayor was without jurisdiction to hear the case and was financially interested because the city would receive a part of the fine.

The contention of City Solicitor J. A. Finney, representing the state, that there was no similarity between this case and the Tumey case, which resulted in Ohio's system of justice courts being declared unconstitutional a year ago, was upheld by the Supreme Court. Chief Justice Taft read the opinion.

The case was the first of its kind to be heard by the Supreme Court since the Tumey decision. Dugan was convicted in 1926 and carried his appeal to the Supreme Court.

His counsel, Attorney F. L. Johnson, argued that the mayor of Xenia was not qualified to preside over a criminal hearing because he had advanced to his office from the Ohio law required the election of judicial officers.

It was also charged that the mayor was financially interested in the extent of the fine because the city would benefit from part of the amount.

Attorney Finney, in answer, contended that the mayor received no fees and the mere fact that the city would profit from the fine was no evidence of his financial interest.

The appeal was heard April 10 but a final decision was not handed down until Monday. Dugan was originally fined $1,000 and costs for possessing liquor.

HOOVER AND SMITH CAMPAIGNS PROBED

WASHINGTON, May 15.—The activities of the national organization behind Herbert Hoover's drive for the Republican presidential nomination was to be investigated today by the senate presidential committee.

George B. Lockwood, one of the directing heads of Hoover's campaign, was summoned to the witness stand. Committee members expected to learn from Lockwood how Hoover gained delegates in many southern states where primaries were not held.

The campaign of Governor Al Smith of New York, for the Democratic nomination, will be investigated tomorrow. William F. Kinney, New York contractor, who advanced $70,000 to Smith's cause, was subpoenaed to appear tomorrow, along with four other Smith workers.

PUPIL TRAPPED IN GIRLS' DORMITORY ON COLLEGE CAMPUS

Two Others Injured; Believe Girl Fainted
Trying To Escape

SPRINGFIELD, O., May 15.—One co-ed was burned to death, and three others slightly injured, in an early morning spectacular fire which partially destroyed Woodlawn Hall, small dormitory which houses twenty-two young women, on the campus of the Wittenberg College here.

Hilda Sipe, freshman, of Shelby, Ohio, was burned to death when she failed to escape from the burning building. College authorities expressed the belief that Miss Sipe fainted when trying to escape. The body was recovered by firemen.

First reports that said Miss Alice Olde, of Detroit, was seriously burned in the blaze were said to be untrue by the college authorities. Miss Olde is nervous and suffering from shock, the university physician said.

Miss Helen MacClain, daughter of former Mayor John MacClain, of Troy, O., sprained both legs when she half-slid and half-jumped down the fire escape leading from a second story window.

The students fled from the structure partially clothed. Other buildings on the campus were deserted when the fire broke out and the reports circulated that Miss Sipe was in the burning building. It was with difficulty that firemen restrained some of the men students from going in search of the victim. The fire was discovered about two o'clock. It is believed to have started in the public reception hall of the dormitory. Authorities or firemen could place no theory as to the origin of the fatal blaze.

Though the whole student body crowded around the burning hall no evidence of excitement or hysteria was manifested, even by the women students.

Miss Sipe was said to have died from inhaling the flames. The young woman was taking a teacher-training course at the college. After the body was removed by firemen it was immediately taken to a funeral home in the city from where it will be sent to Shelby, according to college authorities.

Some of the other young ladies escaped through the windows. Some are reported to have jumped from the second story, but no serious injuries resulting from accident of this kind were reported.

Loss of the building was estimated at $100,000 and is partially covered by insurance.

BELIEVE NINE DIED WHEN FISHING BOAT DESTROYED IN LAKE

Bodies Of Victims Are Sought; One Lives To
Tell Story

GREENVILLE, Me., May 15.—Bodies of nine citizens of Brockton, Mass., and their Maine woods guides were sought in the lower reaches of Moosehead Lake today by Sheriff A. G. Rodgers and a party of searchers in a motorboat. Meanwhile, the lone survivor of the expedition of amateur salmon fishermen, Captain James E. Lays of the Brockton police department, told of the terrible North Woods tragedy.

Exhausted, but believed to be on the road to recovery, his right arm still numb from contact with the frigid water, Captain Lays described the frantic efforts to clear the motorboat of water, the call of the skipper to "get out the life preservers" and how he and Dr. David Bridgwood, eye and ear specialist of Brockton, attempted what they believed was an act of sacrifice—a leap overboard to lighten the fast sinking craft.

Besides Dr. Bridgwood, last seen by Captain Lays swimming shoreward, the lost were: Fire Chief William F. Daley, of Brockton; Sheriff Earl P. Blake of Plymouth County, Mass.; Dr. Arthur F. Peterson, former Brockton city physician; John Sandberg, manufacturer of Brockton; Fred Dahlberg, highway commissioner of Brockton; ex-Mayor Harry C. Howard, of Brockton; Knute S. Salander, Brockton business man and Sam Buddin, of this town, Maine woods guide and skipper of the ill-fated lake craft.

Richard and Edward Davitt, brothers, students of Antioch College, Yellow Springs, successfully passed their final naturalization examination in Common Pleas Court Monday afternoon and after swearing allegiance to this country were formally admitted as citizens of the United States by Judge R. L. Gowdy.

The final hearing was conducted by Edward J. Kennedy, Cincinnati, representative of the department of interior. The Davitt brothers, who were subjects of Ireland, were the only two applicants for citizenship papers.

A third brother, Daniel Joseph Davitt, became a United States citizen by passing his final examination here last year.

Richard and Edward Davitt came to the United States direct from their home in Castletown, Ireland, landing at New York October 8, 1922.

Richard filed his first petition for naturalization December 20, 1927, but because of a mistake, was required to file again January 3, 1928. His brother, Edward, filed his first papers December 20, 1927.

Richard's application was sponsored by Robert E. Hiller and Joseph Holly, Antioch College students. Charles A. Wardle, Jr. and Donald Marcellus, also students, were witnesses for Edward's application.

CAMPAIGN OF TEAS William Jennings Bryan's Daughter Has New Political Methods

Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen

Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The Gazette

MIAMI, Fla., May 15—Florida is being treated to something new in the way of a political campaign.

The innovation is being introduced by a woman—Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of William Jennings Bryan, three times Democratic candidate for the presidency. His daughter also subscribes to the Democratic doctrine. She is a candidate for the nomination for United States representative from the Fourth Florida district.

Although schooled in politics of her father, through years of association with him, she has set up an organization that is widely different from the accepted order.

Directs Own Campaign Mrs. Owen is directing her own campaign and is typically a woman's campaign. It is devoid of mud-slinging, and it is doubtful if she has once, during the time she has been campaigning, mentioned the name of her opponent, W. J. Sears, present representative and long a congressional wheelhorse.

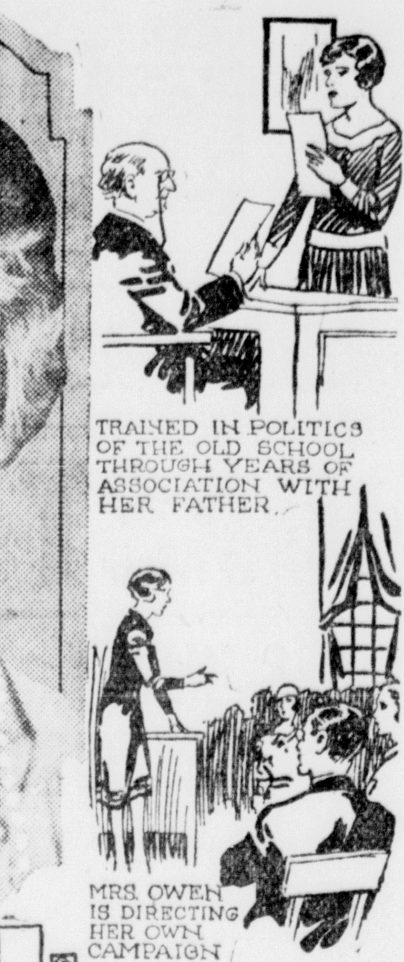

Organization, teas and education. That seems to summarize the basis of Mrs. Owen's campaign. In every county in the district there is a Ruth Bryan Owen club with a woman as chairman. Similar clubs have been organized by men supporters.

Teas for Workers Teas and luncheons are sponsored by the members of the women's clubs, so that an active social calendar, including each day in the week, is announced weekly from the headquarters of her campaign.

At these teas and luncheons, usually held in the home of some prominent woman supporter, the qualifications of Mrs. Owen are discussed. Of course she is able to attend few of them.

She and Sears are contesting for the Democratic nomination at the primary in June, the nomination being equivalent to election in Florida. She lost to Sears two years ago.

Mrs. Owen, a widow of less than a year, is well known as a public speaker. She passes a good part of each year on a Chautauqua circuit.

She is essentially the same bill sought by Coxey three decades ago.

"The old place looks just the same, except for the police and general hostility," he said. "It's hard for me to realize I was thrown down those very steps and into jail thirty-four years ago. A lot can happen in that time. The people of America have awakened, and are heeding the cry of those who cannot get work. The need for legislation for the unemployed is greater now than then. Congress knows it and is acting. I am very happy."

Grizzled Soldier Coxey was the same grizzled old soldier that has fought so many political battles with the same end in view. He wore a dark suit, wing collar, and had on steel rimmed spectacles. Ohio knew him well in this garb in 1895. He polled 52,675 votes in a hot race for the governorship of that state then.

His march to Washington ended as a farce, and gave rise to the derisive term "Coxey's Army."

Out west people flocked to Coxey before his march, however. It was estimated that 20,000 persons attempted to join him. One group of fifteen hundred from the far west, under a Colonel Fry, trekked hundreds of miles in an effort to come with him to the capitol, picking up recruits as they marched. Heavy and continued rain stopped them just west of the Mississippi. Finally when the march began from Massillon there were four hundred of Coxey's soldiers, in rags and tatters, a group of adult waifs going to congress.

They got here, though. Over four hundred miles in rain and mud they walked, and turned up in Washington, May 2, 1894 ready for their battle. They lost it then, but virtual success has crowned the long efforts of their leader.

He was hurled bodily off the steps of the capitol and thrown into jail for a month.

Today the legislation for which Coxey's Army fought in vain bids fair to become law. Coxey recently staged a second invasion of the halls of congress, and was greeted with a smile and escorted about by guides.

The old fellow, seventy-four years old, worn by a career of political struggle, stopped at one of Washington's most luxurious host-eries. On his earlier visit he and his followers camped outside the capitol grounds in tents.

Watched by Police When he reached the capitol in 1894 a cordon of police bristled across the entrance doors, somewhat fearful of this man from the backwoods who had crossed three states to tell his woes to the nation. He took himself and his little band of stragglers back to Ohio after his visit, but did not cease efforts to aid the unemployed.

He has accomplished in the twentieth what he and four hundred others failed to do in the nineteenth century. A house bill reported simultaneously by the senate banking and currency committee during Coxey's visit to Washington provides that money, secured by community non-interest bearing twenty-five year bonds, shall be provided by the government for public improvements through community banks organized under state laws. The measure is intended to make possible a program of public improvement that will give work to thousands. It is essentially the same bill sought by Coxey three decades ago.

COXEY SEES ARMY'S PURPOSE BECOME LAW AFTER YEARS

By E. B. LOCKETT International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 15—Thirty-four years ago Jacob S. Coxey, heading a mob of ragged unemployed which had walked 435 miles from Massillon, Ohio, stormed the national capitol seeking remedial legislation.

He was hurled bodily off the steps of the capitol and thrown into jail for a month.

Today the legislation for which Coxey's Army fought in vain bids fair to become law. Coxey recently staged a second invasion of the halls of congress, and was greeted with a smile and escorted about by guides.

Watched by Police When he reached the capitol in 1894 a cordon of police bristled across the entrance doors, somewhat fearful of this man from the backwoods who had crossed three states to tell his woes to the nation. He took himself and his little band of stragglers back to Ohio after his visit, but did not cease efforts to aid the unemployed.

He has accomplished in the twentieth what he and four hundred others failed to do in the nineteenth century. A house bill reported simultaneously by the senate banking and currency committee during Coxey's visit to Washington provides that money, secured by community non-interest bearing twenty-five year bonds, shall be provided by the government for public improvements through community banks organized under state laws. The measure is intended to make possible a program of public improvement that will give work to thousands. It is essentially the same bill sought by Coxey three decades ago.

"The old place looks just the same, except for the police and general hostility," he said. "It's hard for me to realize I was thrown down those very steps and into jail thirty-four years ago. A lot can happen in that time. The people of America have awakened, and are heeding the cry of those who cannot get work. The need for legislation for the unemployed is greater now than then. Congress knows it and is acting. I am very happy."

Grizzled Soldier Coxey was the same grizzled old soldier that has fought so many political battles with the same end in view. He wore a dark suit, wing collar, and had on steel rimmed spectacles. Ohio knew him well in this garb in 1895. He polled 52,675 votes in a hot race for the governorship of that state then.

His march to Washington ended as a farce, and gave rise to the derisive term "Coxey's Army."

Out west people flocked to Coxey before his march, however. It was estimated that 20,000 persons attempted to join him. One group of fifteen hundred from the far west, under a Colonel Fry, trekked hundreds of miles in an effort to come with him to the capitol, picking up recruits as they marched. Heavy and continued rain stopped them just west of the Mississippi. Finally when the march began from Massillon there were four hundred of Coxey's soldiers, in rags and tatters, a group of adult waifs going to congress.

They got here, though. Over four hundred miles in rain and mud they walked, and turned up in Washington, May 2, 1894 ready for their battle. They lost it then, but virtual success has crowned the long efforts of their leader.

BROTHERS FROM IRELAND TAKE NATURALIZATION EXAMS HERE

Richard and Edward Davitt, Donald Marcellus, also students, brothers, students of Antioch College, Yellow Springs, successfully passed their final naturalization examination in Common Pleas Court Monday afternoon and after swearing allegiance to this country were formally admitted as citizens of the United States by Judge R. L. Gowdy.

The final hearing was conducted by Edward J. Kennedy, Cincinnati, representative of the department of interior. The Davitt brothers, who were subjects of Ireland, were the only two applicants for citizenship papers.

A third brother, Daniel Joseph Davitt, became a United States citizen by passing his final examination here last year.

Richard filed his first petition for naturalization December 29, 1927, but because of a mistake, was required to file again January 3, 1928. His brother, Edward, filed his first papers December 29, 1927.

Richard's application was sponsored by Robert E. Hiller and Joseph Holly, Antioch College students. Charles A. Wardle, Jr. and master and remained there six years until his resignation and return to Cedarville.

Mr. Jackson married Miss Mary Dunlap, daughter of James Dunlap, well-known Cincinnati and Cedarville banker and lumberman and upon his return to Cedarville took charge of the latter's extensive lumber interests there, at Cincinnati and in Michigan. He also directed the farm at Cedarville where he maintained a race track and raised and trained fine horses for the speed ring. For six successive years he was starting judge at the Ohio State Fair races.

Mr. Jackson had always been interested in Republican politics and was elected representative of Greene County in the sixty-eighth and sixty-ninth General Assemblies. At the next session he was elected sergeant-at-arms of the House, being re-elected for six successive terms, both Democrats and Republicans voting for him during his last term.

In 1891 he was appointed by the Governor as a member of the state commission to erect monuments to the memory of the fifty-five Ohio regiments that were represented on the field during the battle of Chickamauga. Four years were occupied in the work of this commission and its successors and the monuments were dedicated September 19, 1895. Mr. Jackson served for twenty-two years, from 1891 to 1912, as a member of the Cedarville school board and when the Cedarville board and the township board were united he continued to serve as clerk of the united board, a continuous service of forty-six years. In 1912 he was elected clerk of Cedarville and he held both of these positions until the time of his death.

When the Cedarville Building and Loan Association was organized in 1896 he was elected secretary and retained that position also until the time of his death, being responsible for much of the success of that institution. Last year he was host to the building and loan group of this section at Cedarville. He was public spirited and took a great interest in politics and in the life of the community. He was popular in a circle of friends that extended all over Ohio and was fond of the society of his friends.

Mr. Jackson was a member of the United Presbyterian Church at Cedarville. Mrs. Jackson died thirteen years ago but Mr. Jackson continued to reside at his beautiful country house known as "Forest Home." He is survived by four children: Mrs. Ralph George, Jamestown; Frank A. Jackson, Xenia, former sheriff and former treasurer of Greene County; Mrs. H. H. Cherry, of Xenia Twp., and Mrs. R. L. Ferguson, Cincinnati. He also leaves two granddaughters: Mrs. R. L. Ferguson, Cincinnati and Miss Helen George, Jamestown, a teacher in Dayton schools and a grandson, Robert Baldwin, Chicago, Ill.

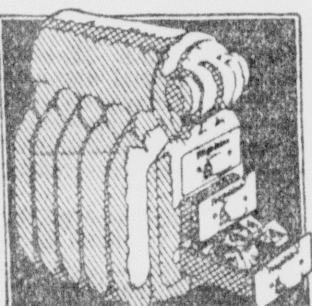

Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the United Presbyterian Church, Cedarville, and burial will be made beside the body of his wife in Spring Grove Cemetery, Cincinnati, Friday morning.

CAMPAIGN OF TEAS

William Jennings Bryan's Daughter Has New Political Methods

Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen

Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The Gazette

MIAMI, Fla., May 15.—Florida is being treated to something new in the way of a political campaign.

The innovation is being introduced by a woman—Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of William Jennings Bryan, three times Democratic candidate for the presidency. His daughter also subscribes to the Democratic doctrine. She is a candidate for the nomination for United States representative from the Fourth Florida district.

Although schooled in politics of her father, through years of association with him, she has set up an organization that is widely different from the accepted order.

Directs Own Campaign Mrs. Owen is directing her own campaign and is typically a woman's campaign. It is devoid of mud-slinging, and it is doubtful if she has once, during the time she has been campaigning, mentioned the name of her opponent, W. J. Sears, present representative and long a congressional wheelhorse.

Organization, teas and education. That seems to summarize the basis of Mrs. Owen's campaign. In every county in the district there is a Ruth Bryan Owen club with a woman as chairman. Similar clubs have been organized by men supporters.

Teas for Workers Teas and luncheons are sponsored by the members of the women's

COXEY SEES ARMY'S PURPOSE BECOME LAW AFTER YEARS

By E. B. LOCKETT International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Thirty-four years ago Jacob S. Coxe, heading a mob of ragged unemployed which had walked 435 miles from Massillon, Ohio, stormed the national capitol seeking remedial legislation.

He was hurled bodily off the steps of the capitol and thrown into jail for a month.

Today the legislation for which Coxe's Army fought in vain bids fair to become law. Coxe recently staged a second invasion of the halls of congress, and was greeted with a smile and escorted about by guides.

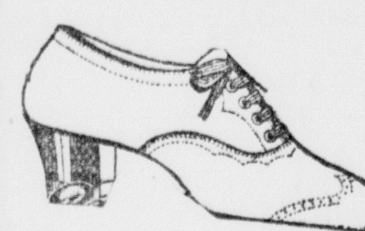

The old fellow, seventy-four years old, worn by a career of political struggle, stopped at one of Washington's most luxurious host-els. On his earlier visit he and his followers camped outside the capitol grounds in tents.

states to tell his woes to the nation. He took himself and his little band of stragglers back to Ohio after his visit, but did not cease efforts to aid the unemployed.

BAKED HAM DINNER

Wednesday Noon
At First M. E. Church of Locomotive Engineers' representatives in Chicago Wednesday to discuss a proposed wage increase, according to announcement of Alvanley Johnston, grand chief engineer of the brotherhood.

Johnston said roads west of the Illinois Central were to be represented at the meeting. The engineers recently filed a request with the managers' association for a 15 per cent increase.

SOME THINGS WORTH WHILE SUBJECT OF ROTARY SPEAKER

"Good homes are more sacred than schools, more necessary than churches, more vital to order and justice than legislatures," declared John Edwin Price, minister, author and former Chautauqua lecturer, service manager of a four-million dollar clothing concern of Cincinnati, in his address before Xenia Rotary Club, Tuesday noon at the Elks' Club.

"Some Things Worth While in America," was Mr. Price's subject. He expounded similar principles to that of the late Arthur "Golden Rule" Nash, whom he has succeeded on the platform.

"America has, from the beginning, been known as a nation of principles. Greece is remembered for her sculpture and philosophy, Italy for her art, France for her architecture, England for literature, but America stands out today because of the great contribution she has made to emphasizing the worth-whileness of principles which inspire men to noble action."

"America never fought a war save for principles. America is known to the suffering, downtrodden and aspiring of earth as a nation of ideals and opportunity. It is not her numbers of square miles which make her great but rather her increasing numbers of square men."

"The history of America to date has been but a narrative of the better minds among us working out in various ways the principles of liberty, equality, justice, fraternity, tolerance and service. These principles and the institutions which maintain them constitute the 'Things Worth While in America.'"

"What are the great institutions maintaining our American principles? The press, the lodge, the church, the school, the home and the platform. While the radio has so far been more entertaining than educational it is rapidly tending toward a more and more important place in American life and thought."

Speaking of liberty, Mr. Price illustrated it by a story of an Irishman who came to this country and began flinging his arms around shouting "Hurrah for the land of Liberty." His fist unluckily collided with the nose of an upstanding American who promptly knocked him down. Scrambling to his feet Pat remonstrated, "Sure I tho't this was the land of Liberty."

"So it is," said the American. "But your liberty ends where my nose begins."

"Good sportsmanship," continued Mr. Price, "is making our land more and more a place where we are considering liberty in the light of the greatest good to the greatest number."

Speaking of equality, Mr. Price said, "We are not all equal in native capacity or power. Nevertheless some have built up their natural abilities, others have allowed them to dry up and atrophy. The truth still stands, however, that America is a land of equality of rights and opportunity."

"The American principal of Justice," said the speaker, "is being more and more applied to business and industry. In every industrial enterprise there are two main factors contributing to the success of the venture. There is the live, active, effort of one group known as employees. There is the money, representative of their past active effort of another group known as stockholders or employers. While the latter group will for some time to come, probably hold the balance of governing power, the American sense of justice is seeing to it that the rights and wishes of the employee group are more and more respected."

SOME THINGS WORTH WHILE SUBJECT OF ROTARY SPEAKER

"Good homes are more sacred than churches, more necessary than schools, more vital to order and justice than legislatures," declared John Edwin Price, minister, author and former Chattanooga lecturer, service manager for a four-million dollar clothing concern of Cincinnati, in his address before Xenia Rotary Club, Tuesday noon at the Elks' Club.

"Some Things Worth While in America," was Mr. Price's subject. He expounded similar principals to that of the late Arthur "Golden Rule" Nash, whom he has succeeded on the platform.

He said in part: "America has, from the beginning, been known as a nation of principles. Greece is remembered for her sculpture and philosophy, Italy for her art, France for her architecture, England for her literature, but America stands out today because of the great contribution she has made to emphasizing the worth-whileness of principles which inspire men to noble action.

"America never fought a war save for principles. America is known to the suffering, downtrodden and aspiring of earth as a nation of ideals and opportunity. It is not her numbers of square miles which make her great but rather her increasing numbers of square men."

"The history of America to date has been but a narrative of the better minds among us working out in various ways the principles of liberty, equality, justice, fraternity, tolerance and service. These principles and the institutions which maintain them constitute the 'Things Worth While in America.'"

"What are the great institutions maintaining our American principles? The press, the lodge, the church, the school, the home and the platform. While the radio has so far been more entertaining than educational it is rapidly tending toward a more and more important place in American life and thought."

Speaking of liberty, Mr. Price illustrated it by a story of an Irishman who came to this country and began flinging his arms around shouting 'Hurrah for the land of Liberty.' His fist unluckily collided with the nose of an upstanding American who knelt down to him. Scrambling to his feet Pat remonstrated, 'Sure I tho't this was the land of Liberty.'

"So it is," said the American. "But your liberty ends where my nose begins."

"Good sportsmanship," continued Mr. Price, "is making our land more and more a place where we are considering liberty in the light of the greatest good to the greatest number."

Speaking of equality, Mr. Price said, "We are not all equal in native capacity or power. Nevertheless some have built up their natural abilities, others have allowed them to dry up and atrophy. The truth still stands, however, that America is a land of equality of rights and opportunity."

"The American principle of Justice," said the speaker, "is being more and more applied to business and industry. In every industrial enterprise there are two main factors contributing to the success of the venture. There is the live, active effort of one group known as employees. There is the money, representative of their past active effort of another group known as stockholders or employers. While the latter group will for some time come, probably hold the balance of governing power, the American sense of justice is seeing to it that the rights and wishes of the employee group are more and more respected."

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

LENGTH OF DAYS—The fear of the Lord prolongeth days: but the years of the wicked shall be shortened.—Prov. 10:27.

U. S. AND THE WORLD COURT

Sooner or later the Congress of the United States must vote again on whether America shall enter the world court by the league of nations, and how.

The court is functioning fairly well. It has been organized for nearly seven years. It has at least destroyed the siege of war in several cases. It has handed down 11 judgments, four orders, and it has given 15 advisory opinions. Three cases are now open for judgment and one request for an advisory opinion. In no case has the losing nation refused to accept the decision of the court.

When France and Great Britain were quarrelling about the Tunisian protectorate, the court made a pronouncement; France modified its decree to meet the British position.

When the court held that Poland could not dispossess certain German protestants Poland backed up and paid compensation to those objectors.

In the controversy between Greece and Turkey over the exchange of population, Turkey yielded and the transfer of population went on on the basis of the court's opinion.

When the court held in the Mosul boundary case that Turkey was wrong, Turkey and Great Britain got together in short order.

And so it goes. It is not an absolute guarantee against war, of course. For a hundred years, maybe a thousand, there can be no such guarantee. But the world court is one of the many agencies which are now being built up all over Christendom where international contestants can come and discuss their differences and possibly find a way out of war. To say that America will forever remain out of that particular agency is the height of folly. We are edging into the court. There are more and better reasons why we should go in than why we should stay out.

COOLIDGE TO GETTYSBURG

President Coolidge's announcement of his intention to deliver his Memorial Day address at Gettysburg, instead of at the amphitheatre at Arlington National Cemetery, is unusual as well as interesting. He will be the second President since Lincoln to deliver a Memorial Day address on the field at Gettysburg, the same field which inspired the original Lincoln address of dedication. President Roosevelt is the one chief executive who up to this time has been the sole follower of the Lincoln precedent.

It is always a futile undertaking to attempt to speculate on the motivating thought behind any move of President Coolidge. The newspaper and other publicists have long since learned that embarking on such an adventure results in but poor forecasts. It can be said, now, however, that the country on the whole will applaud the President's determination.

It is a good thing that once in so often, but not so often as to become a commonplace, that the Chief Executive should for a while forego the usual routine of speaking at the graves at Arlington and speak upon the field itself where the success was won which made not only Arlington a possibility, but the Lincoln Memorial as well.

NOT ALL RAINY DAYS

In talking about thrift we emphasize too much the "rainy day" that may come. Better to think more about the pleasures and luxuries that money can buy and the good and useful things we can do with money. Why not put the most attractive limit on thrift. Let's not say we will save today in order that we may pay our debts tomorrow. Rather let us save today that we may have a better automobile when we are old.

WEARING

A British painter stood before a piece of sculpture in Hyde Park, London, and talked for 12 hours in an effort to attract so much attention that Parliament would remove the piece. What a burden a man sets out to carry when he adds to the normal cares of life all the trivialities he may pick up. What a sad thing it is for a man to take himself too seriously. How this world needs a good, durable sense of humor!

BOOTLEGGERS

Many men who drink alcoholic beverages moderately have contempt for bootleggers. But what else can we expect but bootleggers? They are the logical supply for demand. The bootlegger does not come unannounced into the world. He is introduced to the world by the market. One wonders when, if ever, the time will come that any considerable number of prominent citizens will undertake the experiment of prohibition.

RELIABILITY

No matter how charming or delightful a man may be, no matter what his disposition and intentions, if you are forced to call him unreliable or irresponsible you have pronounced him a total loss. A man may have all sorts of bad habits and still amount to a great deal. With bad habits he may still be a power in the community. But if the word gets about that he is "a nice fellow but irresponsible, unreliable," he is wrecked as far as advancement is concerned.

THE BEST NEWSPAPERS

Newspaper today are the best product ever made in the history of the business. In one issue of a first-class large newspaper there is more good reading matter than has ever been found before. The quality of reporters is better, machinery is better, facilities for gathering and distributing news are vastly more proficient. It is now up to publishers and editors to have vision and intelligence and courage to use these remarkable facilities in a manner for the public good.

The Diary of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK, May 15.—In New York a man is as big as his press agent makes him. Few men of any prominence or aspiration, are without a "public relations counsel" or "social secretary."

The well known Ivy Lee puts the Rockefeller in the newspapers in the way in which they wish to appear. He is given credit for inspiring John D. senior's habit of giving away bright dimes. He is suspected of having had something to do with Lindbergh's futile flight to Montreal with Rockefeller Institute serum. It may be more than mere coincidence that he is intent upon making Soviet Russia respectable to American eyes at the same time the Rockefeller companies are extending investments there.

Harry Bruno and Richard Blythe are Lindbergh's public relations counsel. Otto Kahn has an energetic publicity man, Henry Ford's publicity staff is one of the largest in the country. Mrs. Henry Moskowitz is Governor Al Smith's very able publicist. A press agent has been "plugging" Herbert Hoover's name and the accomplishments of Hoover's Department of Commerce for three or four years. The press agent of the late Charles Steinmetz, hired by the General Electric Co., made him one of the most dramatic figures in the country.

Of course, every movie star, stage performer, opera singer and professional athlete has an "exploitation man." Authors are not backward in this respect either. The writers who scorn commercialism are ironically enough having the personalities expanded and popularity extended by the ultra-commercial methods of paid publicity agents.

Most of the names in the society columns of metropolitan dailies and "smart" magazines are there because of social secretaries whose duty it is to see that the persons go to the "right places" at the "right times" and are photographed frequently doing the "right things." Pictures that folks in the hinterland see from time to time, depicting Mrs. Smith or Mrs. That "promenading on Park avenue," or "golfing at Miami," or "leaving St. Thomas church," were prearranged by the social secretary, made by a paid photographer, and sent around the newspapers' offices by the subject of the photo.

In New York, the city editors of newspapers are kept busier keeping publicity puffery out of the paper than they are putting news in.

One wonders how long Al Woods and Florence Ziegfeld, the show producers, will continue to remain the considerable public figures that the extraordinary press-agenting of Samuel Hoffenstein and Bernard Sobel, respectively, made them. The men that the public knows as a result of Hoffenstein's and Sobel's literary labors do not exist, they are legendary figures.

Sobel, Ziegfeld to work for Anne Nichols, author of "Abie's Irish Rose," at $50,000 a year. Hoffenstein gave up his press-agent work to live a poet's life. He is the author of "Poems in Praise of Practically Nothing," which is doing what very few books of verse ever do, sell fast and as extensively as any fiction best-seller.

WHEN BUSINESS COURTESY WAS NEW

Continue courtesy is a comparatively new thing in business. It has been only a few years since business men stumbled upon the discovery that customers are more likely to return after a slap on the back than after a kick in the stomach.

Take for example the railroads. The famous "damned" policy governed railroads for many years, and a large ratio, if not a majority of those railroad employees who dealt directly with the public were a crusty lot. They were never told, or given the slightest incentive, to be otherwise. The consequence was that discourteous cost railroads in this country millions of dollars.

The woman who made an occasional railroad journey did not know the president of the road and had no way of ascertaining if he was a courteous gentleman. Her only knowledge of railroad people was gained from her dealings with the ticket agents, conductor, or baggage man. When one of these failed to treat her politely she resented it and began to hate all railroad men, including higher officials and stockholders. She taught her children to do likewise.

It was years before railroad companies realized what a vast annual sum of money they were paying for the discourtesy of their employees. When they did finally awaken, however, they had the good sense to start a campaign of education among the employees by means of straight advertising methods. They printed and distributed courtesy literature and carried on such a vigorous courtesy propaganda that their employees were gradually converted from being a crusty lot to being courteous.

Today the average railroad employee is charmingly courteous.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Importance of Clothes to Beauty
Most women know that there are distinct types of clothes which are especially designed for the varying figures. Dress manufacturers expend thousands of dollars yearly in the salaries of designers who are clever in "line" and can take from 10 to 40 pounds off a woman's apparent weight by a cleverly continued fold or pleat.

And I am glad to be able to assure you that more and more salesgirls are being instructed to sell the right thing—not anything! So it's not such a precarious task to choose clothes as might be expected. There are, nevertheless, certain outstanding laws which are well to observe.

The basic laws of line, I might call them—for they will guide you even when you have only your own judgment and a mirror to rely upon. First in importance is the slenderizing quality of the long vertical line. However, it must depend upon your figure whether or not you can afford to have the line sweeping from neck to hem or broken at waist, hip or knee length. The absolutely proportional figure can stand the sheath line, but for the average woman a belt at the hips is more likely to be suitable. A diagonal line on the blouse from neck to hip will minimize the full-breasted figure. Flowing panels add both height and slenderness. Short sleeves are taboo for the large woman.

The bloused back is particularly flattering to the large woman, and is remarkably effective in concealing stooped or round shoulders and hollow back. Long, narrow vests are another mode of concealment for the large woman. Vertical plaits are full they must be either inverted or side plaits, as the all-around or accordion plaiting has a tendency to add inches to the hip measurement. Tiers in the skirt are slenderizing if they are sufficiently wide. Narrow tiers, somewhat resembling ruffings, are very bad.

Colors should be dark for the stout woman. She must particularly avoid vivid colorings. Prints are inclined to make a large woman look larger, but as the summer mode says "Prints," so emphatically, there will be many misguided selections. However, if you must have a print, choose an all-over design in a small pattern. Do not select material in which colors are too widely contrasting. Black and white, and navy blue and white, are the best choice. Sleeves for stout woman should be long and flowing, emphasizing the length of her arm rather than its width. An added inch to the hem of her dress will often subtract pounds from her appearance.

For the thin woman lines should become curves as often as possible. The bolero jacket is very good as is, for that matter, any design which divides the length of the waist. Sleeves may be peasant style—loose and flowing. Shirred waist lines and wide hems are both effective. Avoid tight-fitting bodices unless the width of the skirt is to be greatly accentuated. The modernistic angles in darker patterns on the new sport clothes are very good. Tiers may be narrow—and frequent. Round necks are becoming and contrasting colors—the skirt darker than the waist—add an effect of roundness to the silhouette.

There are lines and lines! As a general rule the vertical line adds height and slenderness, and the horizontal line adds weight and shortens the lines. Parallel lines either way accentuate the effect. That is why vertical pleats strengthen the long slender line, and horizontal tucks "spread" waist, hips, arms, etc. You need have no difficulty in conforming to the generalities in line when you select your wardrobe if you bear these basic laws well in mind.

Mouth Breathers

MRS. M.'s little boy, 4½ years old has had his enlarged tonsils and adenoids removed, but he still keeps his mouth open while asleep or awake. She constantly tells him to close his mouth and often closes it when he sleeps, but he opens it up again and breathes through his mouth.

It may be possible, and it is quite probable, that his keeping his mouth open is simply a habit from his having to keep it open when his breathing was obstructed. Mrs. M. However, I would take him back to the physician who operated upon him to see if his nasal passages are clear. Occasionally adenoid tissue will regrow.

Try holding his mouth closed, with his cooperation, to see if he can breathe freely through the nose. If he can, I suggest you either tie his chin up or else put a little piece of gummed tape over his lips at night until he overcomes the habit. If this succeeds, tell him if he can breathe all right through his nose, he can do it during the daytime, too, and simply remind him whenever you see it open.

Bad Tonsils and Odenoids

Mrs. A.'s little boy of 3½, had obstructive tonsils and adenoids since he was a year old. He chokes frequently and takes cold on the slightest provocation. Her doctor advised her to have them taken out long ago, but she thought she would wait until the baby was older and he might outgrow them.

Well, you have waited, Mrs. A., at a great risk, too. While there is no doubt that unhygienic conditions, and especially an incorrect diet, can accentuate the growth of the tonsils and adenoids, and sometimes the changing of these conditions will make them shrink to normal size, a mother should not depend too long upon hygiene.

Tonsils and adenoids that are so large or diseased that they obstruct the breathing of the face, as well as seriously impair the health. The teeth may not come in normally, the nasal passage become narrowed, the obstructed breathing will affect the physical growth and even the mental growth. The resistance to disease is lowered to the afflicted child is much more susceptible to infections; ear troubles are also apt to follow.

You can see from Mrs. M.'s letter that mouth breathing may be one of the results of having enlarged tonsils and adenoids, even after they are removed; and the

One of the chief causes of flabby breasts after pregnancy and nursing is the excessive fat which the mother has gained, making the breasts too heavy, and the skin becomes stretched. Flabby breasts are the penalty of overweight, both in the nursing and non-nursing woman.

Heavy breasts should be held in a support by well fitting brasieres.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Congressman Cordell Hull, of Tennessee, became a sure-enough Democratic presidential candidate overnight.

He's been a possibility all along—the kind, however that can't possibly be nominated. He was due from the first to get Tennessee's vote at Houston—and perhaps a few more votes. This was enough to make him a perfunctory possibility—entitled to his proper alphabetical place on every dopest's list, to recognition as one of those whom the vice presidential lightning might actually strike—and that was about all.

It was as such a possibility that Congressman Hull decided to bet on the night of the California primaries—before their result was known.

In the morning he got up a genuine candidate.

In order not to fool anybody—the Tennessee representative stands no more chance today of being nominated for president on the Democratic ticket at Houston than he did before.

But his candidacy MEANS something now—or may—a whole lot. Those California primaries wrought the change.

As we're aware, there's a Democratic element opposed to Al Smith.

This element was hoping the California Democrats would throw a bad crimp into Al, as a wet.

They were offered three picks—Al, Jim Reed and Tom Walsh. The anti-Smithites doubtless would have preferred to see even Jim win, rather than Al, but Jim's wet himself.

It really was Tom the anti-Smithites were pulling for.

If Tom had won, all the anti-Smith forces would have lined up under his banner too quick.

He not only didn't win—he got such a licking that he retired from the field.

Now just because you may happen to be pro-Smith, and perhaps will Hull allow the fight to go to the last ditch?—as McDoo did four years ago.

I have my doubts.

Hull's a very different type from Bill.

He's no rule-or-ruiner. He isn't unduly selfish. His ego's only normal.

He'll get all he can. I don't believe he'll cut off his own and Al Smith's joint Democratic nose to spite Al's face.

WORKING MOTHERS

During the last decade many married women have been pushed out from the shelter of the home into business by economic conditions. Many of them felt much abused at first, but after adjusting themselves here and there, while combining housekeeping with business is no sinecure, it can be done, and they often have become so interested in their jobs that it is hard to give them up and return to the seemingly insignificant duties of the home alone.

When a woman becomes a mother, however, there is another element to reckon with. Nursery schools and similar institutions may in time replace the care of the individual mother, but they are too few to be relied on at present, and yet to be proved efficient substitutes. With very few exceptions, I think a woman should not undertake the bringing of a child into the world unless she is willing to undertake its care in the most intelligent manner possible.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: What do you think of a woman who works and has a turned out child over to a younger sister to care for, and does not seem to understand that she has any responsibility in regard to it? If she has a vacation she goes as she goes. If her little sister goes she takes the child with her. Young men do not ask her for dates because of her having to care for the child. If the mother has spare time she goes to a movie or some entertainment. Her husband earns enough to support them. Can a man be true to a woman of this kind?"

"Anxious."

It seems to me the woman shirks all her responsibilities. Why does the little sister not assert herself if she does not wish to take care of the child? And as to the husband, if he disappears of his wife's course he could divorce her on the ground of her neglect of him and the child.

"Spink! Spink! Spink! Cheer up, Mrs. Rabbit," chirped the cheery voice. "If Sonny-Bunny is a bit like all your other children he will turn up safe and sound. By this time you should have gotten used to having your young ones run away. Why, I don't believe there was a day last season when at least one of your kiddies didn't go and get itself lost, but I always notice when night came on it ran home to mother."

"If you really want to know where Sonny-Bunny is, I just spied the scamp making tracks for the lettuce patch in Farmer Brown's garden. It doesn't take Bobolink long to find out things, now does it? Spink! Spink! Spink!"

"Oh, Mr. Lincoln, Mr. Robert O'Lincoln, thank you so much!" At the good news the bird brought Mrs. Rabbit's whiskers trembled with joy. "I am so glad you are back. When did you come? In kind of a trip did you come? In a lettuce patch? Oh, dear me, he might meet a cat. I must go and bring him home." Mrs. Rabbit, forgetting everything, even her best manners, bounded off in search of her truant baby.

Peter and the feathered stranger who had brought the good news as to where Sonny-Bunny was hiding—left alone together, stared at each other. Peter was the first to speak.

"Hello," said he. "Why did Mrs. Rabbit call you Mr. Robert O'Lincoln?"

"Because she was very polite. I am plain Bobolink to my friends."

"Hello, Two-Legs," replied the feathered bearer of good tidings, and then chirped merrily, and Peter knew Bobolink was laughing.

"I don't see how Mrs. Rabbit can very well blame her son for running away to steal a bit of green lettuce the first chance he has!" twittered the bird. "She knows the way quite too well herself not to have been to the lettuce patch many a time. When one of these failed to treat her politely she resented it and began to hate all railroad men, including higher officials and stockholders. She taught her children to do likewise.

It was years before railroad companies realized what a vast annual sum of money they were paying for the discourtesy of their employees. When they did finally awaken, however, they had the good sense to start a campaign of education among the employees by means of straight advertising methods. They printed and distributed courtesy literature and carried on such a vigorous courtesy propaganda that their employees were gradually converted—just as they might have been won over by the appeal of effective advertising, or to a different brand of suspenders. Today the average railroad employee is charmingly courteous.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Importance of Clothes to Beauty

Most women know that there are distinct types of clothes which are especially designed for the varying figures. Dress manufacturers expend thousands of dollars yearly in the salaries of designers who are clever in "line"—can take from 10 to 40 pounds off a woman's apparent weight by a cleverly constructed fold or pleat.

And I am glad to be able to assure you that more and more salesgirls are being instructed to sell the right thing—not anything! So it's not such a precarious task to choose clothes as might be expected. There are, nevertheless, certain outstanding laws which are well to observe.

The basic laws of line. I might call them—for they will guide you even when you have only your own judgment and a mirror to rely upon. First in importance is the slenderizing quality of the long vertical line. However, it must depend upon your figure whether or not you can afford to have the line sweeping from neck to hem or broken at waist, hip or knee length. The absolutely proportional figure can stand the sheath line, but for the average woman a belt at the hips is more likely to be suitable. A diagonal line on the blouse from neck to hip will minimize the full-breasted figure. Flowing panels add both height and slenderness. Short sleeves are taboo for the large woman.

The bloused back is particularly flattering for the large woman, and is remarkably effective in concealing stooped or round shoulders and hollow back. Long, narrow vests are another mode of concealment for the large woman. Vertical plaits are very good, but if the hips are full they must be either tucked or pleated. As the all-around or accordion plaiting has a tendency to add inches to the hip measurement, tiers in the skirt are slenderizing if they are sufficiently wide. Narrow tiers, somewhat resembling ruffings, are very bad.

Colors should be dark for the stout woman. She must particularly avoid vivid colorings. Prints are inclined to make a large woman look larger, but as the summer mode says "Prints," so emphatically, there will be many misguided selections. However, if you must have a print, choose an all-over design in a small pattern. Do not select material in which colors are too widely contrasting. Black and white, and navy blue and white, are the best choice. Sleeves for stout woman should be long and flowing, emphasizing the length of her arm rather than its width. An added inch to the hem of her dress will often subtract pounds from her appearance.

For the thin woman lines should become curves as often as possible. The bolero jacket is very good, as is, for that matter, any design which divides the length of the waistline. Sleeves may be narrow, style—loose and flowing. Shirred waist lines and wide hems are both effective. Avoid tight-fitting bodies unless the width of the skirt is to be greatly accentuated. The modernistic angles in the waistline are very good. Clothes are very good. Tiers may be narrow—and frequent. Round necks are becoming and contrasting colors—the skirt darker than the waist—add an effect of roundness to the silhouette.

here are lines and lines! As a general rule the vertical line adds height and slenderness, and the horizontal line adds weight and shortens the lines. Parallel lines either way accentuate the effect. That is why vertical pleats strengthen the long slender line and horizontal "tucks" "loosen" waist, hips, arms, etc. You need have no difficulty in conforming to the generalities in line when you select your wardrobe if you bear these basic laws well in mind.

Mouth Breathers

MRS. M.'s little boy, 4½ years old has had his enlarged tonsils and adenoids removed, but he still keeps his mouth open while asleep or awake. She constantly tells him to close his mouth and often closes it when he sleeps, but he opens it up again and breathes through his mouth.

It may be possible, and it is quite probable, that his keeping his mouth open is simply a habit from his having to keep it open when his breathing was obstructed long ago, but she thought she would wait until the baby was older and he might outgrow them.

Well, you have waited, Mrs. A., at a great risk, too. While there is no doubt that unhygienic conditions, and especially an incorrect diet, can accentuate the growth of the tonsils and adenoids, and sometimes the changing of these conditions will make them shrink to normal size, a mother should not depend too long upon hygiene.

Tonsils and adenoids that are so large or diseased that they obstruct the breathing of the face, as well as seriously impair the health. FEATURES

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Congressman Cordell Hull, of Tennessee, became a sure-enough Democratic presidential candidate overnight.

He's been a possibility all along—the kind, however that can't possibly be imagined. He was due from the first to get Tennessee's vote at Houston—and perhaps a few more votes. This was enough to make him a perfunctory possibility—entitled to his proper alphabetical place on every domestic list, for recognition as one of those whom the vice presidential lightning might actually strike—and that was about all.

It was as such a possibility that Congressman Hull went to bed on the night of the California primaries—before their result was known.

In the morning he got up a genuine candidate.

In order not to fool anybody—the Tennessee representative stands no more chance today of being elected than he did when the Democratic ticket at Houston that he did before.

But his candidacy MEANS something now—or may—a whole lot. Those California primaries wrought the change.

As we're aware, there's a Democratic element opposed to Al Smith.

This element was hoping the California Democrats would throw a bad crimp into Al, as a wet.

They were offhand at the picks—Al, Jim Reed and Tom Walters.

The anti-Smithites doubtless would have preferred to see even Jim win, rather than Al, but Jim's wet himself.

It really was Tom the anti-Smithites were pulling for.

If Tom had won, all the anti-Smith forces would have lined up under his banner too quick.

He not only didn't win—he got such a licking that he retired from the field.

Now just because you may happen to be pro-Smith, and perhaps a wet, don't get the idea that Cordell Hull isn't an attractive personality.

You like him on sight.

He's a tallish, fine looking chap of 57—a public man at the prime of his life and dignity mark him from the snow-white crown of his head on down. His face is singularly amiable. It's strong. It suggests that he can fight—but fairly, never viciously or vindictively.

He's a rule-or-ruiner. He isn't unduly selfish. His ego's only normal.

He'll get all he can. I don't believe he'll cut off his own and Al Smith's joint Democratic nose to spite Al's face.

But—supposing it happens—will Hull allow the fight to go to the last ditch?—as McAdoo did four years ago.

I have my doubts.

Hull's a very different type from Bill.

He's no rule-or-ruiner. He isn't unduly selfish. His ego's only normal.

Rotary Beats Kiwanis To Open Softball Season

AMERICAN LEAGUE SEASON LAUNCHED WITH HITTING BEE

Kimber Invincible After Bad Start In First Inning

Officially opening the season in the American Softball League, the Rotarians developed a powerful scoring punch to defeat their time-honored rivals, the Kiwanis Club, 21 to 16 in an old-fashioned slugging bee Monday night at Cox Memorial Athletic Field.

Spotting the Kiwanians to a five-run lead in the first two innings, the Rotary nine unloosed a batting attack that produced one or more runs in every inning but the second.

After Kiwanis had tallied six runs in its half of the first frame, J. R. Kimber, Rotary hurler, settled down and pitched good ball thereafter. White started in the box for Kiwanis but McLaughlin finished the contest. Both were hit hard. Vic Kolb, Kiwanian, hit three home runs and a double.

Carroll-Binder Co. plays the Laug Chevrolet Co. in another American League match Tuesday night at 6 o'clock.

One of the largest crowds ever to witness a softball game in Xenia was on hand for the Rotary-Kiwanis battle.

Rotary lineup: Stout, 1b; Ervin, 2b; Baldner, 3b; Kimber, p; Hamerle, cf; Cox, ss; Sayre, rf; T. McClellan, c; S. McClellan, lf; Tull, rf.

WOMAN IS KILLED

COLUMBUS, O., May 15.—The body of Mrs. Maudie Van Meter, widow, who was killed in an auto accident on the National Highway near here yesterday, will be sent to Point Pleasant, W. Va., according to advices at the funeral home where the body is being prepared for burial. Relatives there, it was said, will have charge of the funeral arrangements. Mrs. Van Meter is survived by four small children who are at present at the home of her sister at Little Hocking, where Mrs. Van Meter resided.

FIGHT IN DAYTON

DANNY KRAMER.

DAYTON, May 15.—Eddie Anderson, the Wyoming cowboy junior light-weight and Benny Kramer, Philadelphia feather-weight, arrived in town Sunday and will complete their training here for their twelve round decision bout at Memorial Hall Thursday night May 17. Both appeared to be in the pink of condition and within striking distance of the required poundage of 130 pounds.

Many local fans crowded the gymnasium Sunday afternoon and watched both fighters go through their paces. Anderson worked at two o'clock and at 4:00 p. m. the Philadelphia started to work on three sparring partners and sent them all to sleep in one round each. This fellow Kramer is a south-paw and about the hardest socker ever uncovered here. It will be necessary for him to get his future workouts on the bags and dummies as the local boys will not work with him after what happened to three of their number yesterday. That Anderson is in for a busy evening is certain as a puncher like Kramer is liable to end this scrap at any time.

It looks to be the best bout of the year as far as action is concerned and there should be few dull moments after the bell rings Thursday night.

BOWERSVILLE WINS OPENING CONTEST

The Bowersville Bayliffs baseball team opened its season with a victory, defeating the Springfield Park Athletics 6 to 2 Sunday afternoon on the Bayliffs diamond at Jamestown.

H. Lucas, on the mound for Bowersville, staged a pitcher's battle against a namesake, R. Lucas, of Springfield.

Despite the low score, both hurlers were hit rather freely. Bowersville managed twelve hits and Springfield, nine.

H. Lucas, however, was at his best with runners on the cushions. As an indication of his power in the pinches, when the first three batters in the seventh hit safely, filling the bases, the Bayliff pitcher bore down and retired the side without scoring.

All but one man in the Bayliff lineup hit safely at least once. D. Murrell showing the way with two doubles and a single in four times at bat. Harper, Bull, Sharp and R. Lucas each got two bingles for the Athletics.

Bowersville's next game is with the Springfield Tramps next Sunday, May 20 at 2:30 p. m., at Jamestown.

Sour Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"
Better than Soda

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly. "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1876.

CEDARVILLE LOSES TO WITTENBERG IN FREE HITTING GAME

Hitting the offerings of three pitchers at all corners of the field, Wittenberg College's baseball team registered a 17 to 7 victory over Cedarville College Monday afternoon at Zimmerman Field, Springfield.

The Lutheran batters got to Adair, Cedarville starting pitcher, in the first inning, pushing across four runs. Adair held Wittenberg scoreless in the next two rounds while his mates were obtaining three runs, but the slaughter was resumed in the fourth when seven runs crossed the plate for Wittenberg.

Nagley, succeeded him in the box but was little better. The Cardinal and Cream nine added two more runs in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings.

Cedarville scored two in the first, one in the third, two in the fifth and two in the ninth.

Wittenberg out-hit Cedarville thirteen to nine. Both teams played clean ball in the field. Only one error was recorded against the "Yellow Jackets." Box score:

QUOIT CLUB BEATEN MONDAY IN LEAGUE CONTEST IN DAYTON

Somewhat outclassed and suffering, more than anything, from lack of practice, the Xenia Quoit Club lost its second straight Miami Valley League match to the South Park Club of Dayton, 6 to 1 on the local courts Monday night.

That each game was closely-contested is indicated by the fact the Dayton team only outscored Xenia by a total of thirty-seven points on the evening. South Park registered 367 points to 330 for Xenia, thereby winning the extra seventh game.

Xenia escaped a shutout by winning the second game, sixty-three to forty-nine.

Dayton triumphed in the first game, 67 to 46; won the third, 64 to 48; the fourth, 65 to 58; the fifth, 63 to 58; and the sixth, 59 to 57.

Merritt, Xenia pitcher, and Williamson, South Park player, tied for individual high scoring honors for the match, each with sixty-seven points for the six games played.

Rotary Beats Kiwanis To Open Softball Season

AMERICAN LEAGUE SEASON LAUNCHED WITH HITTING BEE

Kimber Invincible After Bad Start In First Inning

Officially opening the season in the American Softball League, the Rotarians developed a powerful scoring punch to defeat their time-honored rivals, the Kiwanis Club, 21 to 16 in an old-fashioned slugging bee Monday night at Cox Memorial Athletic Field.

Spotting the Kiwanians to a five-run lead in the first two innings, the Rotary nine unloosed a batting attack that produced one or more runs in every inning but the second.

After Kiwanis had tallied six runs in its half of the first frame, J. R. Kimber, Rotary hurler, settled down and pitched good ball thereafter. White started in the box for Kiwanis but McClellan finished the contest. Both were hit hard. Vic Kolb, Kiwanian, hit three home runs and a double.

Carroll-Binder Co. plays the Lang Chevrolet Co. in another American League match Tuesday night at 6 o'clock.

One of the largest crowds ever to witness a softball game in Xenia was on hand for the Rotary-Kiwanian battle.

Rotary lineup: Stout, 1b; Ervin, 2b; Balder, 3b; Kimber, p; Hamerle, cf; Cox, ss; Sayre, 1b; T. McClellan, c; S. McClellan, 1b; Tull, rf.

Score by innings:

FIGHT IN DAYTON

DANNY KRAMER.

DAYTON, May 15.—Eddie Anderson, the Wyoming cow-boy hunter, light-weight and Benny Kramer, Philadelphia feather-weight arrived in town Sunday and will complete their training here for their twelve round decision bout at Memorial Hall Thursday night May 17. Both appeared to be in the pink of condition and within striking distance of the required poundage of 130 pounds.

Many local fans crowded the gymnasium Sunday afternoon and watched both fighters go through their paces. Anderson worked at the black and at 4:00 p. m. the Philadelphia fighter worked on the three sparring partners and sent them all to sleep in one round each. This fellow Kramer is a south-paw and about the hardest sucker ever uncovered here.

It will be necessary for him to get his future workouts on the bags and dummies as the local boys will not work with him after what happened yesterday. That Anderson is in for a busy evening is certain as a puncher like Kramer is liable to end this scrap at any time.

It looks to be the best bout of the year as far as action is concerned and there should be few dull moments after the bell rings Thursday night.

BOWERSVILLE WINS OPENING CONTEST

The Bowersville Bayliffs baseball team opened its season with a victory, defeating the Springfield Park Athletics 6 to 2 Sunday afternoon on the Bayliff's diamond at Jamestown.

H. Lucas, on the mound for Bowersville, staged a pitcher's battle against a namesake, R. Lucas, of Springfield.

Despite the low score, both hurlers were hit rather freely, Bowersville making twelve hits and Springfield, nine.

H. Lucas, however, was at his best with runners on the cushions. As an indication of his power in the pinches, when the first three batters in the seventh hit safely, filling the bases, the Bayliff pitcher bore down and retired the side without scoring.

All but one man in the Bayliff lineup hit safely at least once, D. Murrell showing the way with two doubles and a single in four times at bat. Harper, Bull, Sharp and R. Lucas each got two bingles for the Athletics.

Bowersville's next game is with the Springfield Tramps next Sunday, May 20 at 2:30 p. m., at Jamestown.

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly. For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

CEDARVILLE LOSES TO WITTENBERG IN FREE HITTING GAME

Hitting the offerings of three pitchers to all corners of the field, Wittenberg College's baseball team registered a 17 to 7 victory over Cedarville College Monday afternoon at Zimmerman Field, Springfield.

The Lutheran batters got to Adair, Cedarville starting pitcher, in the first inning, pushing across four runs. Adair held Wittenberg scoreless in the next two rounds while his mates were obtaining three runs, but the slaughter was resumed in the fourth when seven runs crossed the plate for Wittenberg.

Nagley, succeeded him in the box but was little better. The Cardinal and Cream nine added two more runs in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings.

Cedarville scored two in the first, one in the third, two in the fifth and two in the ninth.

Wittenberg outlived Cedarville thirteen to nine. Both teams played clean ball in the field. Only one error was recorded against the "Yellow Jackets." Box score:

HEARINGS OF DAIRY MEN POSTPONED AND CASES TRANSFERRED

For the second time hearings of James Hurley and O. L. Clemmer, dairymen, accused of using registered milk bottles belonging to other dairies, scheduled for Tuesday afternoon but were postponed.

The hearings were to have been held Monday before J. F. McEwan, justice of the peace, but no motion of Attorney C. L. Harrington, defense counsel, the cases were transferred to Probate Court. Prosecutor J. C. Marshall agreed to this in order to obtain an immediate hearing.

The charges against the local dairymen were filed by James Martin, Columbus, O., inspector for the state department of dairy and food inspection. They are accused of using bottles belonging to Ringer and Son, The Springfield Dairy Products Co. and V. H. Moore and Son.

SEVEN NEW VICE PRESIDENTS GENERAL OF D. A. R.

Seven new vice presidents general, elected by the Daughters of the American Revolution, meeting in Washington, D. C., are, left to right, Mrs. Charles B. Jones, of Texas; Mrs. James Lathrop Gavin, of Indianapolis, Ind.; Mrs. Henry B. Joy, of Michigan; Mrs. H. Eugene Chubbick, of Peoria, Ill.; Mrs. Robert Howe Hunger, of Iowa; Mrs. W. H. Conaway, of West Virginia, and Mrs. Brooks Gwathmey White, Jr., of Florida.

Soviet Foe Dies

Baron Peter Wrangel, one of the Russian leaders, who unsuccessfully attempted to halt Bolshevism, is dead at Brussels where he has been living. Great individual courage gained him promotion from a non-commissioned officer to a high rank in the Russian army during the World War.

Others Did It

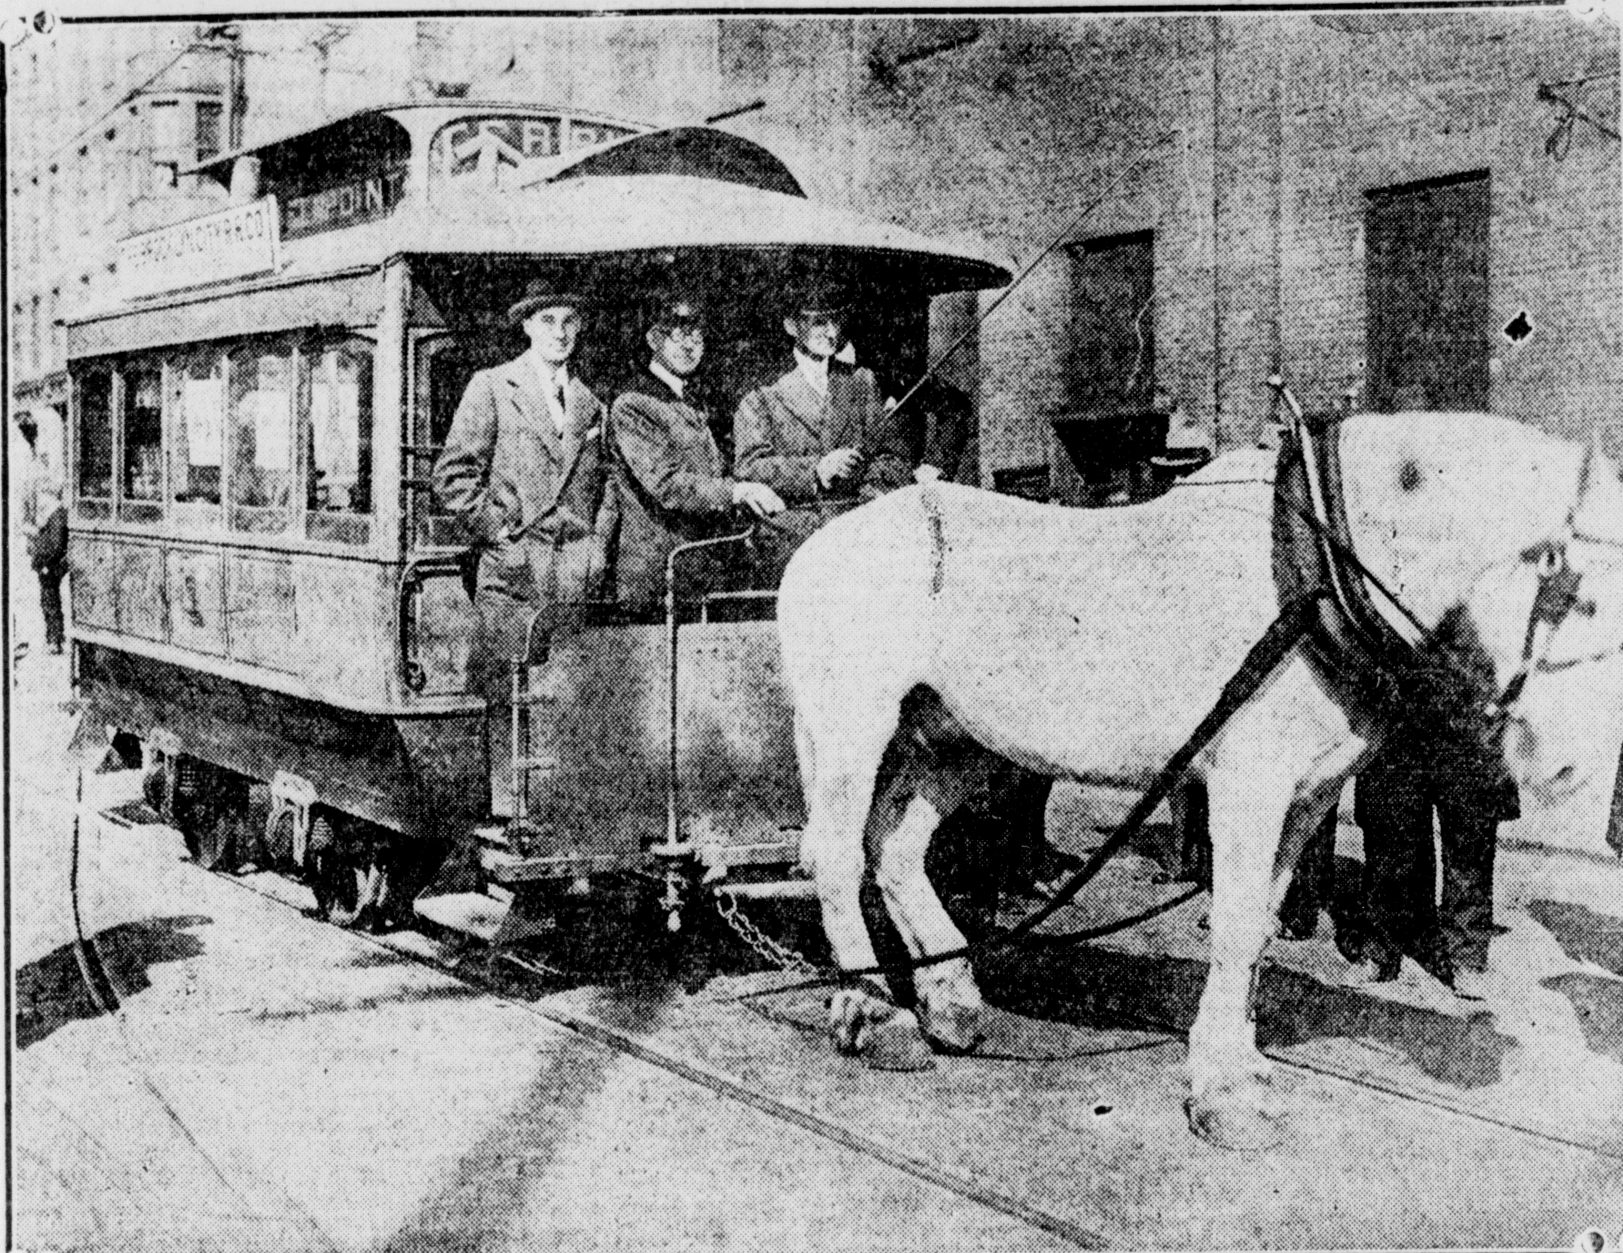

Have we forgotten Alcock and Brown (top), who spanned the Atlantic by air in a single hop in 1919—the first men to do it? Sixteen hours from Newfoundland to Ireland was their time. Brown is still living, but Alcock died in a simple plane crash in Paris.

Seek Vacant Seat

Two negroes, from the first Illinois district, Chicago, have been after the Republican nomination for the congressional seat made vacant by the death of Representative M. B. Madden. Oscar DePriest, above, snapped while making a speech, former county commissioner, has been nominated by the congressional committee of the district. William Harrison, below, assistant attorney general of Illinois, has announced that if the nomination of DePriest is upheld by the court and election officials he will become an independent candidate. The first Illinois district is four-fifths negro in population. Madden has represented it in congress for the last quarter century.

ADDS ANOTHER RELIC TO HIS LIST OF SOUVENIRS

One of the first things Henry Ford did after returning from his European trip was to accept this old horsecar for his collection of antiques. He got it at the old car barns in Brooklyn, N. Y. He took it for a spin to see how it worked, with his son, Edsel, and James Gregory of trolley company.

SHOT BY RUM FEUDISTS IN ESCAPING BURNING HOME

Mrs. Kate Browning, 60, of Shepherdsville, Ky., has been slain and five of her relatives wounded in fleeing from their flaming cabin, believed to have been set afire as a retaliatory measure by moonshiners who believed that the family had given information to prohibition agents that resulted in the seizure of a still. The Browning family, asleep in the cabin, awakened to find the house afire. Hacking their way out they were set on by a band of eight men who opened fire with shot guns. Photos above show some of the wounded members of the family. Left to right are Mrs. Amanda Jones, Mrs. Lou Browning, sister of the slain woman; Peachy Browning, and Angie Browning. Inset is Ben Browning, the first of the family to emerge from the burning cabin. Screaming that he was shot he hid in a haystack for 15 hours after the crime. It was feared that he, too, had been slain.

Mrs. John Sukeena of Pottsville, Pa., was found dead in her home. The police at first thought it was a case of suicide but are now holding her husband, John Sukeena, pending a thorough investigation of the circumstances of her death.

Forgets Past Life

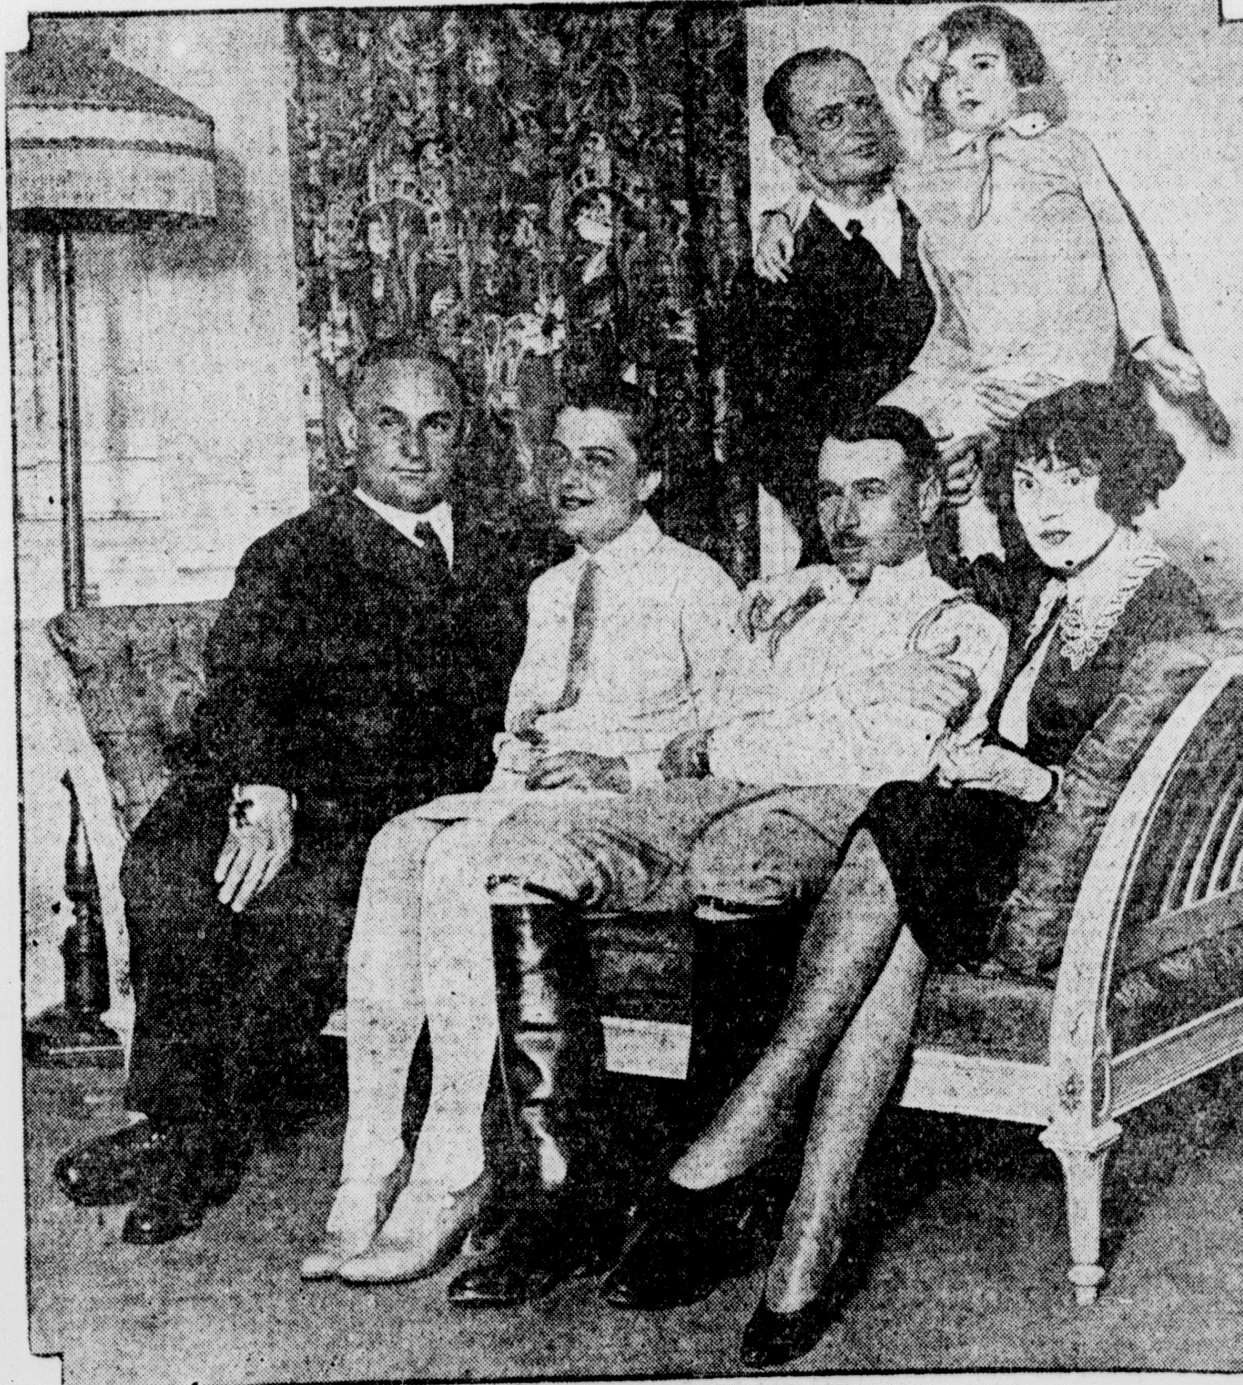

Completely losing her memory, even to forgetting her name, place of residence and occupation, a girl identified as Martha Taylor, of Hollywood, Cal., above, has suffered one of the most remarkable amnesia cases on record. Friends who missed her called at the Los Angeles police station and identified her, but even this has not aided her in recalling anything of her past life. According to doctors a quarrel with her sweetheart, which relatives say she had recently, is responsible for her lapse of memory.

SET NEW ENDURANCE RECORD FOR SEAPLANES

THOMAS DAUGHERTY CHRISTY CALLED BY DEATH ON TUESDAY

After a lingering illness of several months, Thomas Daugherty Christy, 80, passed away at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charles Oglesbee, Spring Valley, Tuesday morning at 3 o'clock.

Mr. Christy was born on a farm near Chillicothe in 1848, the son of John D. and Catherine Christy. He was the second son of a family of eight children, two of whom died in infancy.

In 1871, he was united in marriage with Eliza J. Lytle, who survives him. To this union was born one son, Carey A. Christy, who died at the age of fifteen years. Besides the widow, the following children survive: Mrs. Thomas J. Jack, Cleveland; Miss F. A. Christy, Dayton; and Mrs. Charles Oglesbee, Spring Valley, with whom he made his home.

Also surviving are his stepmother, Mrs. John D. Christy, Sabina; two sisters, Mrs. Mary Zimmerman, Lawrence, Kan., Mrs. Charles Reynolds, Miami, Fla., two brothers, the Rev. William Blackstone Christy, who was for a number of years district superintendent of the M. E. church in Missouri and who is now retired and residing in Eustis, Fla., Richard Christy, New Holland and a half brother and sister, Charles Christy and Miss Gertrude Christy, Sabina. Mr. Christy has been a member of the Methodist Protestant Church a number of years and has always been a faithful and loyal member. His membership recently has been with the M. P. Church, Paintersville. He attended services regularly as long as his health permitted and he took a great interest in the church activities, particularly in the Adult Bible Class of which he was teacher.

Funeral services will be held at the Oglesbee home in Spring Valley Thursday at 1:30 p. m., with burial in Port William Cemetery.

RELATIVE OF XENIA RESIDENT IS DEAD

Mrs. Flora Haydock Sellers, 76, wife of the Rev. O. M. Sellers, former pastor of the Jamestown M. E. Church, died at her home in West Milton, O., early Monday morning.

Funeral services will be held at the New Burlington M. E. Church, Wednesday at 2:30 p. m., with burial in New Burlington Cemetery.

Mrs. Sellers was an aunt of Dr. B. L. Lackey, this city. She leaves her husband and three sons, Prof. D. H. Sellers, county school superintendent, Miami County; Evan Sellers, Lima, O., and Randolph Sellers, Cleveland. A daughter, Mrs. Quincy Florida, died a year ago.

SQUATTERS' CLAIM TO PART OF CHICAGO PRESSED NOW BY KIN

"Cap'n and Ma" Streeter

By IONE QUINBY
Staff Writer for Central Press and The Gazette

CHICAGO, May 14.—Shades of "Cap'n and Ma" Streeter! From the very grave these two picturesque characters, who, before their deaths, defended with shotguns their squatters' claim to "the district of Lake Michigan," which embraces half a billion dollars worth of Chicago's shoreline, have risen again to assert their ownership of Streeterville, Chicago's gold coast.

For litigations involving claims to Streeterville, valued now at more than $500,000,000 have been instituted all over again in a United States district court.

Twenty-one heirs of "Cap'n and Ma" are asking ejectment and $50,000 damages against more than 600 defendants, who make up the tenants and property owners located in the district, and involving such names as the Potters, Palmers, Carpenters, and other well-known Chicago social, business and industrial families.

The battle began back in 1886, when "Cap'n" Streeter was in his prime. Wearing always a battered silk ringmaster's hat, relic of his younger days spent with a circus, the "Cap'n" claimed he was "king" of the twenty-two acres, and defied the foreign government, "Chicago," and vicinity to take it away from him.

When he wasn't in court defending his rights, he was spending his time warding off "invaders" with a shotgun. At times he called out his "army" (his wife), who came to his assistance with another gun sometimes, but more often with a pan of dishwater.

For years abstract and title guarantee companies refused to underwrite anybody's title to the disputed city acres. For near twenty years the fire-eating old "Cap'n" prevented anybody from erecting a structure in his empire. Then the lower courts ruled against him, land values sky-rocketed, and real estate took heart. Skyscrapers began to appear.

Then "Cap'n" and "Ma" passed away, and the federal court in Chicago dismissed the suits.

Were Not Neighborly

But now the heirs have to be dealt with. They want Streeterville back, and with it an accounting of rentals.

Streeterville's other name is the "Gold Coast," and so valuable are its holdings that it might be termed the "platinum coast." Some of "Ma" Streeter's neighbors were Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, the John Drakes, and the William Hale Thompsons.

"Ma" never did get to call on Mrs. McCormick, however—never got to see her new lace curtains, or talk to her about the best way to roast duck, for Mrs. McCormick didn't exactly approve of "Ma's" claims to the $500,000,000 kingdom.

On the other hand, "Ma" might have thought Mrs. McCormick of her a lot of back rent.

On the same principle the Streeters and Drakes and Thompsons weren't chummy.

PRESBYTERIAN AND METHODIST MERGER BEING DISCUSSED

CHICAGO, May 15.—The greatest church union in the history of the world, involving a fourth of the people in the United States, will be launched this month, it has been announced here.

The Presbyterian and Methodist Episcopal churches will attempt a merger both of members and of property. The two churches, in all their branches have 10,000,000 active members and 14,000,000 adherents, including Sunday School members.

Property involved in the giant spiritual combine totals nearly a billion dollars in 35,000 churches throughout the country, as well as schools, hospitals, philanthropic enterprises and other investments.

Millions of Members

In the northern branches of the two churches there are 7,000,000 active members and 10,000,000 adherents; in the southern branches 3,000,000 members and 4,000,000 adherents.

Commissioners in both churches will be appointed immediately, it was learned, to investigate the problems connected with the proposed union.

During the month the proposal will come before the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church at Kansas City, and the general assembly of the Presbyterian church at Tulsa, Oklahoma.

For the first time in the history of American religious history, according to local officials of both churches, the difficulties attendant to a merger are not looked upon as unresolvable.

Various attempts at such a union have been made before, but minor disagreements on teaching as well as property involved blocked action.

Property of the Methodist Episcopal church is estimated in value at $550,000,000 in 25,000 churches. The Presbyterian church has 10,000 churches valued at $200,000,000.

These tremendous valuations constitute one of the most complicated problems to be solved, it was understood. In many communities there are churches of the two denominations close together, and the merger might mean elimination of some of these duplications in religious service.

Serious Problem

Division of the Protestant churches, with resultant weakening of all sects, has been a serious problem in the minds of ecclesiastical leaders.

The recent merger of Canadian churches, including the Congregational church and the two involved in the proposed American merger, has been successful, it was pointed out. A similar plan is proposed in this country.

Completion of the unification would be made as quickly as possible, it was understood, after the preliminary differences were ironed out.

Most of these differences, however, do not involve questions of teachings or dogma, but merely adjustments necessary in such a large combination.

Leaders of both churches in Chicago district have expressed approval of tentative plans which are expected to mature into a definite policy this month.

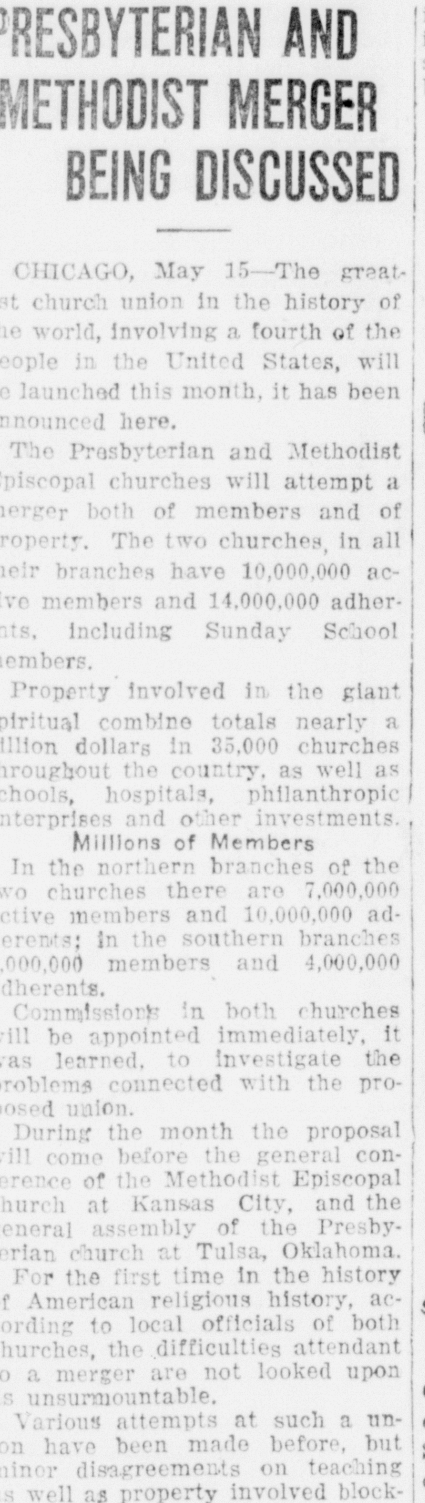

From other leaders in both churches it was learned that other denominations are expected to follow into the merger when it is seen to be successful.

The completed merger, according to those church leaders would include more than half the persons in the United States, as members and adherents.

Accused Trooper

Gets New Trial

PAWHUSKA, Okla., May 15.—Once more a king returns to his own. A reversal by the United States circuit court of a sentence of life imprisonment in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., has been obtained by W. K. Hale, picturesque and wealthy cattleman, known as the king of the Osage country.

Hale was convicted of the murder of Henry Roan, rich Osage Indian.

Hale and John Ramsey, his nephew, were convicted in October of 1926, at Oklahoma City, after one of the most spectacular murder trials in the history of the southwest. At an earlier trial at Guthrie, the jury disagreed.

The government charged Hale and Ramsey were the brains of what became known as the Osage reign of terror, a murder ring that is said to have schemed the death of a dozen rich Osage Indians for the purpose of stealing their wealth.

While the murder ring operated a half dozen persons who are said to have known too much, met death at the hands of an assassin.

Arrests were made after the government spent three years investigating the mysteries.

One of the principal witnesses against Hale and Ramsey, who were tried jointly, was Ernest Burkhardt, husband of a wealthy Osage Indian, who turned informer. He now is serving a life sentence in the Oklahoma state penitentiary for the deaths of W. E. Smith, his wealthy Osage wife and their maid. They were killed when their home at Fairfax was dynamited in 1925.

Hale was granted a new trial on the grounds that the trial court erred in not granting him a separate hearing. For years Hale was not only one of the wealthiest citizens of the Osage country, but one of the most influential.

CHAPTER XLVII

AS MEN LOOK AT LIVES

When David Kenmore got to Mr. Armitage's office, he did not wait to knock. He opened the door as quickly as possible, and he, too, for a moment, saw the elder Armitage without his mask.

He was reading the morning paper, and he still had it in his hand as he looked up at David.

"Kenmore, were you at that disgraceful party last night?" he said, abruptly.

"Yes, sir, I was at that party, but there was nothing particularly disgraceful about it that I could see, except the brawl that took place between your son and myself."

"My God, Kenmore. Do you mean to tell me that you were the man who fought with my son?"

"We did not fight. No matter how angry I was at any man, I would not strike one who was crippled in any way. I have not seen the morning paper, and I do not know what was said about it."

Without a word, Mr. Armitage passed it over. The reporter had evidently found out nothing except the mere hearsay that Ralph Armitage tried to fight with another man at June Challer's party, and dislocated his shoulder again, and tore the bandage off of his broken ribs. The reporter did not say, however, that the affair had been over some girl.

Then, to give the story color, all Ralph's tragic marriage had been hashed over, and it was intimated that the other man had caught Ralph making love to his girl.

David laid the paper down.

"How much of that is true?" asked Mr. Armitage.

"It is all true," said David. "I do not tell enough, that is all. You have probably seen Miss Fenton, Mr. Armitage, but you probably have forgotten that Armitage & Son hired her on my recommendation."

"I, however, have not forgotten that you gave her the position as a favor to me."

"I remember all about it, Kenmore," said Mr. Armitage. "At the time she told me that she and you had been childhood pals ever since you started into school, and that you hoped she would be your wife some day."

Mr. Armitage's reference to Lynda as a someday being his wife, angered David.

"I am glad you remember that, sir, for my possible."

"What do you mean, Kenmore?"

"I mean that Ralph Armitage, junior, thinks he can buy with your money anything that strikes his fancy. He thinks—and perhaps he is right—that life has, by his tragic marriage, set him outside the usual regulations that are given to other men. Mr. Armitage, I cannot offer much to Lynda, but I can offer her marriage with an honorable man. Lynda Fenton has told me this morning that she is not sure that this is enough to overbalance wonderful apartments, gorgeous jewelry, foreign cars, as well as foreign trips, which your son can give her."

"What would you have done, Mr. Armitage, if, when you were in love with your son's mother, someone had filled her mind, as your son has Lynda's, with such fairy tales of splendor and romance?"

Ralph Armitage, senior, looked at the young man before him soberly. "Do you know to which hospital they took my son?" he asked.

"No, sir. I only know that I have been too long getting to the thing I came in here to say. I want to tender my resignation with your firm—to take place at once."

Next morning David tried to explain to Lynda that he sought only to protect her, and asked her to marry him. She spurns him, saying that she will accept that which means most to her, though now she's undecided.

(Now Go On With The Story)

READ THIS FIRST:

Lynda Fenton, a singularly innocent girl, is private secretary to Ralph Armitage. Her father, a drunkard, tells her that her mother deserted them, and that all women have their price.

Lynda meets Emily Andrews, who cherishes a secret fondness for David Kenmore, Lynda's companion from childhood. Emily plots against Lynda from the very beginning. David tells Lynda he loves her, but she decides she doesn't want to be in love with any man. David is away on a trip.

Lynda's father, too, deserts her, and Claire Stanhope comes to live with her. Ralph Armitage meets with an accident, and Lynda goes to his home on business, where he is enthralled by her innocent charms. Next day he tells her that he loves her.

June Challer, who has annexed money, throws a jazz party. Lynda and Claire Stanhope attend, and so does Ralph Armitage. But Ralph is still an invalid, and spends the evening on a divan. Emily Andrews has written David insinuating news pertaining to Lynda and Ralph Armitage, and David, worried, hurries home. He arrives late at the party, where Emily subtly leads him to a view of Lynda's innocent efforts to make Ralph comfortable. He sees Ralph clasp her arm, and hears him curse when others interrupt them.

He rushes in, Ralph rises, then collapses. Lynda spurns David.

Next morning David tries to explain to Lynda that he sought only to protect her, and asked her to marry him. She spurns him, saying that she will accept that which means most to her, though now she's undecided.

"How much of that story is true?" asked Mr. Armitage.

The man who could not stir on his pillow, looked with dumb, pleading eyes at his father. "You are echoing my own wish, sir."

"Tell me what happened last night."

"There is nothing to tell, except that David Kenmore overheard me telling Lynda Fenton that I loved her and called me a scoundrel for doing it."

"I forgot I was only a bundle of broken bones, and tried to get at him and fell."

"I suppose you know that the newspapers got hold of it?"

"No, sir. I have not seen a paper this morning."

"Ralph, I came over here this morning to see whether you were well enough to apologize to David Kenmore."

The face of the man on the bed grew stony.

"Why should I apologize to a man I never saw before last night?" he asked. "Why should he butt into my affairs. The whole thing was only between Miss Fenton and myself."

"David Kenmore, Ralph, has loved Lynda Fenton all his life."

"That is that to me? You should know, father, that when a man falls in love with a girl, he is going to have her if he can get her."

"Ralph, have you forgotten that you have no right to love any woman?"

OHIO CROP REPORT

The May 1 government crop report for Ohio indicates the largest percentage of abandonment of winter wheat acreage ever recorded in the state and forecasts the smallest production of winter wheat, with one exception, in over sixty years. The report, as issued by G. S. Ray of the Federal Crop Reporting Service, further states that the growth of pasture and hay crops has been very backward this spring. Fruit crop prospects are fairly good, very little frost damage having occurred up to May 1.

Winter Wheat

Prospects for winter wheat production in Ohio on May 1, 1928, were the poorest, with one exception, in over sixty years. Conditions May 1 indicated a crop of 8,870,000 bushels. The winter wheat crop last year amounted to 28,980,000 bushels, while the average for the past ten years is 26,660 bushels. In 1900 the production was 8,524,000 bushels and in 1912 it was 9,760,000 bushels, these two crops with the present one being the poorest on record.

Ohio planted 2,471,000 acres of wheat last fall and the crop on December 1 was in fine condition. Due to an extremely unfavorable winter, wheat was badly killed out and only 840,000 acres remain for harvest. The abandoned acreage this year is 66.9 per cent of the acreage sown compared with 4.5 per cent abandoned last year and a ten-year average abandonment of 8.9 per cent. The heaviest abandonments recorded previously were in 1902, with 37.5 per cent, and in 1910, with 45.2 per cent.

Weather conditions during the past two months have been unfavorable to the wheat crop. Where wheat remains for harvest, the condition of the crop varies considerably. There are some instances of fairly good wheat fields but, on the whole, stands of wheat are quite thin and the condition averages very poor over the entire state. In some instances the only reason for letting poor wheat fields stand this season is to save the clover which has been seeded in these fields.

The winter wheat forecast for the United States of May 1 is 456,478,000 bushels, or 12.9 per cent less than the crop of 552,384,000 bushels produced in 1927. The acreage planted to winter wheat in the United States last fall was 47,841,000 acres, but the heavy abandonment of 25.1 per cent reduced the acreage for harvest to 35,858,000 acres as compared with 37,872,000 acres harvested last year.

Radio Revue

BY C. KAY

NEW YORK, May 15.—Radio experts are advising listeners who live in large cities, where the houses are built on steel skeletons, to employ an outdoor aerial rather than one inside an apartment in a low building. For between the broadcast station and the aerial are undoubtedly are many structures with metal frameworks, each of which absorbs some of the passing energy, and the amount that reaches the set is comparatively small.

Brick, stone or wood, or, in fact, any insulating material, does not offer any obstruction to radio waves, but metals do, and such things as iron cornices or girders in the walls may seriously affect reception if they are in the path which the radio wave must traverse to reach the receiving instrument.

An aerial is simply a means of picking up impulses sent out by transmitters. A long aerial naturally has more chance of picking up these waves than one which is confined in a small space. This is another argument in favor of outside aerials. The popular idea that there has to be a considerable amount of wire in an aerial and that it doesn't matter how confined this is, is all wrong, the experts say. A short antenna will give good results if placed so that it can readily pick up signals.

Any sort of wire may be used for an antenna, either of the indoor or outdoor type. The only requirements are that it be a good conductor and mechanically strong enough to stand the tension of being stretched across a space. It can be insulated, for as stated above, covering offers no impediment to the radio waves providing a good electrical connection is made to the receiver. No particular size of wire is the best. Theoretically the heavier the wire is the less resistance it offers to the flow of electricity.

Radio engineers say that theoretically a horizontal aerial will receive best in the direction along its length — i. e., an antenna stretched east and west should receive better from those directions and best from the direction from which the lead-in is brought down. However, radio waves are distorted by large objects in their paths and the directional qualities of an aerial can not be depended on.

Particularly is this true if the aerial is erected in a district in which there are many others. Aerials close together naturally affect one another's results. In cases where antenna are too close they act as wave traps for each other.

If possible, one expert advises, "place the aerial at a large angle to the others, the nearer to right angles the better. Do not worry about having to cross the wires do not touch and there is enough space between them to prevent wind from swinging them together."

STRESSEMAN BETTER

BERLIN, May 15.—Physicians attending Foreign Secretary Gustave Stresemann said today they believed he had passed the crisis of his illness last night. The patient is suffering from stomach and intestinal catarrh fever complicated by a kidney infection.

PAWHUSKA, Okla., May 15.—Once more a king returns to his own. A reversal by the United States circuit court of a sentence of life imprisonment in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., has been obtained by W. K. Hale, picturesque and wealthy cattleman, known as the king of the Osage country.

Hale and John Ramsey, his nephew, were convicted in October of 1926, at Oklahoma City, after one of the most spectacular murder trials in the history of the south-west. At an earlier trial at Guthrie, the jury disagreed.

The government charged Hale and Ramsey were the brains of what became known as the Osage reign of terror, a murder ring that is said to have schemed the death of a dozen rich Osage Indians for the purpose of stealing their wealth.

Many Met Death While the murder ring operated a half dozen persons who are said to have known too much, met death at the hands of an assassin.

Arrests were made after the government spent three years investigating the mysteries.

One of the principal witnesses against Hale and Ramsey, who were tried jointly, was Ernest Burkhart, husband of a wealthy Osage Indian, who turned informer. He now is serving a life sentence in the Oklahoma state penitentiary for the deaths of W. E. Smith, his wealthy Osage wife and their maid. They were killed when their home at Fairfax was dynamited in 1925.

Hale was granted a new trial on the grounds that the trial court erred in not granting him a separate hearing. For years Hale was not only one of the wealthiest citizens of the Osage country, but one of the most influential.

Completion of the unification would be made as quickly as possible. It was understood, after the preliminary differences were ironed out.

Most of these differences, however, do not involve questions of technique or dogma, but merely adjustments necessary in such a large combination.

Leaders of both churches in Chicago district have expressed approval of tentative plans which are expected to mature into a definite policy this month.

From other leaders in both churches it was learned that other denominations are expected to follow into the merger when it is seen to be successful.

PRESBYTERIAN AND METHODIST MERGER BEING DISCUSSED

CHICAGO, May 15.—The greatest church union in the history of the world, involving a fourth of the people in the United States, will be launched this month, it has been announced here.

The Presbyterian and Methodist Episcopal churches will attempt a merger both of members and of property. The two churches, in all their branches have 10,000,000 active members and 14,000,000 adherents, including Sunday School members.

Property involved in the giant spiritual combine totals nearly a billion dollars in 35,000 churches throughout the country, as well as schools, hospitals, philanthropic enterprises and other investments.

Millions of Members

In the northern branches of the two churches there are 7,000,000 active members and 10,000,000 adherents; in the southern branches 3,000,000 members and 4,000,000 adherents.

Commissioners in both churches will be appointed immediately, it was learned, to investigate the problems connected with the proposed union.

During the month the proposal will come before the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church at Kansas City, and the general assembly of the Presbyterian church at Tulsa, Oklahoma.

For the first time in the history of American religious history, according to local officials of both churches, the difficulties attendant to a merger are not looked upon as unmanageable.

Various attempts at such a union have been made before, but minor disagreements on teaching as well as property involved blocked action.

Property of the Methodist Episcopal church is estimated in value at $500,000,000 in 25,000 churches. The Presbyterian church has 10,000 churches valued at $200,000,000.

These tremendous "valuations" constitute one of the most complicated problems to be solved, it was understood. In many communities there are churches of the two denominations close together, and the merger might mean elimination of some of these duplications in religious service.

Serious Problem

Division of the Protestant churches, with resultant weakening of all sects, has been a serious problem in the minds of ecclesiastical leaders.

The recent merger of Canadian churches, including the Congregational church and the two involved in the proposed American merger, has been successful. It was pointed out. A similar plan is proposed in this country.

Completion of the unification would be made as quickly as possible. It was understood, after the preliminary differences were ironed out.

Most of these differences, however, do not involve questions of technique or dogma, but merely adjustments necessary in such a large combination.

SWEETHEARTS

AUTHOR of "MY SON'S SWEETHEARTS," "CONFESSIONS OF A WIFE," ETC.

READ THIS FIRST:
Lynda Fenton, a singularly innocent girl, is private secretary to Ralph Armitage, her father, a drunkard, tells her that her mother deserted them, and that all women have their price.

Lynda meets Emily Andrews, who cherishes a secret fondness for David Kenmore, Lynda's companion from childhood. Emily plots against Lynda from the very beginning. David tells Lynda he loves her, but she decides she doesn't want to be in love with any man. David is away on a trip.

Lynda's father, too, deserts her, and Claire Stanhope comes to live with her. Ralph Armitage, meets with an accident, and Lynda goes to his home on business, where he is enthralled by her innocent charms. Next day he tells her that he loves her.

June Challer, who has annexed money, throws a jazz party. Lynda and Claire Stanhope attend, and so does Ralph Armitage. But Ralph is still an invalid, and spends the evening on a divan. Emily Andrews has written David insinuating news pertaining to Lynda and Ralph Armitage, and David, worried, hurries home. He arrives late at the party, where Emily subtly leads him to a view of Lynda's innocent efforts to make Ralph comfortable. He sees Ralph clasp her arm, and hears him curse when others interrupt them.

He rushes in, Ralph rises, then collapses. Lynda spurs David.

Next morning David tries to explain to Lynda that he sought only to protect her, and asks her to marry him. She spurns him, saying that she will accept that which means more to her, though now she's undecided.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XLVII

AS MEN LOOK AT LIVES

When David Kenmore got to Mr. Armitage's office, he did not wait to knock. He opened the door as quickly as possible, and he, too, for a moment, saw the elder Armitage without his mask.

He was reading the morning paper, and he still had it in his hand as he looked up at David.

"Kenmore, were you at that disgraceful party last night?" he said, abruptly.

"Yes, sir, I was at that party, but there was nothing particularly disgraceful about it that I could see, except the brawl that took place between your son and myself."

"My God, Kenmore. Do you mean to tell me that you were the man who fought with my son?"

"We did not fight. No matter how angry I was at any man, I would not strike one who was crippled in any way. I have not seen the morning paper, and I do not know what was said about it."

Without a word, Mr. Armitage passed it over. The reporter had evidently found out nothing except the mere fact that Ralph Armitage tried to fight with another man at June Challer's party, and dislocated his shoulder again, and tore the bandage off of his broken ribs. The reporter did not say, however, that the affair had been over some girl.

Then, to give the story color, all Ralph's basic marriage had been hashed over, and it was intimated that the other man had caught Ralph making love to his girl.

David laid the paper down.

"How much of that is true?" asked Mr. Armitage.

"It is all true," said David. "It does not tell enough, that is all. You have probably seen Miss Fenton, Mr. Armitage, but you probably have forgotten that Armitage & Son hired her on my recommendation."

"I, however, have not forgotten that you gave her the position as a favor to me."

"I remember all about it, Kenmore," said Mr. Armitage. "At the time she told me that she and you had been childhood pals ever since you started into school, and that you hoped she would be your wife some day."

Mr. Armitage's reference to Lynda as a someday being his wife, angered David.

"I am glad you remember that, sir, for your own son has probably made it impossible."

"What do you mean, Kenmore?"

"I mean that Ralph Armitage, junior, thinks he can buy with your money anything that strikes his fancy. He thinks—and perhaps he is right—that life has, by his tragic marriage, set him outside the usual regulations that are given to other men. Mr. Armitage, I cannot offer much to Lynda, but I can offer her marriage with an honorable man. Lynda Fenton has told me this morning that she is not sure that this is enough to overbalance wonderful apartments, gorgeous jewelry, foreign cars, as well as foreign trips, which your son can give her."

"What would you have done, Mr. Armitage, if when you were in love with your son's mother, someone had filled her mind, as your son has Lynda's, with such fairy tales of splendor and romance?"

Ralph Armitage, senior, looked at the young man before him somberly. "Do you know to which hospital they took my son?" he asked.

"No, sir. I only know that I have been too long getting to the thing I came in here to say. I want to tender my resignation with your firm—to take place at once."

"Do you feel that is necessary, David?"

CHURCH TO BORROW MONEY; TWO WIVES SEEKING DIVORCES

The Regular Baptist Church of Xenia, through its Board of Trustees, consisting of William Maxwell, L. A. Wagner, Frank Jacobs, William Hale and Harley Woolery, has made application in Common Pleas Court for authority to mortgage property and borrow $1,500 with which to liquidate the church debt and to make certain other improvements.

The church congregation recently voted to authorize the execution of a mortgage on church property, according to the application, filed through Attorney C. W. Whitmer.

TWO ASK DIVORCE

Charges of extreme cruelty and gross neglect of duty form the basis of a suit for divorce filed in Common Pleas Court by Emma Hill against Edward Hill.

Plaintiff complains that her husband was gone for two years and that his whereabouts were unknown to her. During this time she received no support from him, she says. He returned a year ago and lived with her until about Christmas time in 1927, when he again deserted and they have been living apart ever since, the petition sets forth.

The defendant contributed some money toward her support until two weeks ago, when he notified her that the payments would be discontinued, plaintiff charges.

Plaintiff seeks to be decreed temporary and finally permanent alimony and a reasonable attorney fee.

They were married in April, 1923 at Chattanooga, Tenn. No children were born of the union.

KONJOLA BRINGS NEW FEELING OF GLORIOUS HEALTH

"It Did More Than I Ever Expected," Says Uniontown Citizen

There is a great joy in living if you feel good all the time. Healthy persons are happy. Yet how many modern people are robbed of happiness, due to common health disorders. Many forms of suffering arise from a weak, unhealthy system. There has always been a need for a real scientific medicine—something more than a tonic—that will actually restore new years. Plaintiff claims her husband would not support her. The couple was married December 6, 1906 at Xenia. No children were born of the marriage.

ORDER PARTITION MADE

Partition of real estate has been ordered in the case of John Hana-zhan and others against Nellie Whaley and others in Common Pleas Court. T. C. Long, John Wright and James Crowl were appointed commissioners to appraise the estate.

SALE APPROVED

Sale of property to the plaintiff in the case of The Bowersville Bank against C. E. Hargrave has been confirmed in Common Pleas Court. The price bid for the premises was $5,000, which is insufficient to pay a mortgage held by the bank, the court found. The bank was ordered to pay the costs in the case, $118.70.

There is also no balance from the proceeds of the sale out of which to pay a mortgage set up in an answer and cross-petition filed by Alonzo Johnson, so the mortgage was ordered cancelled of record.

TWO WIN DIVORCES

Hallie Stevens has been awarded a divorce from Dale Stevens in Common Pleas Court on grounds of gross neglect of duty. Plaintiff was given custody of the minor child, Vivian Lucille.

Ruth Isabelle Perrill has obtained a divorce from Charles Elson Perrill on similar grounds, and was decreed custody of the minor child, Gloria Ruth.

DISMISS CASE

Suit of Revell Hurley against Mabelle Hurley has been ordered dismissed without record in Common Pleas Court.

DECISION OF COURT OVER WILL DISPUTE UPHELD ON APPEAL

Decision of Common Pleas Court in the partition suit of Laura B. Marshall and others against Perry Hanes and others was sustained by the Greene County Court of Appeals Saturday.

The action was brought to partition certain real estate which came to them, as alleged by the plaintiffs, from the estate of Mary Jane Hanes, who died testate and leaving a will which bequeathed "to my brothers John Hanes and Perry Hanes, share and share alike all of my property of every description whatsoever, real and personal."

The brother John N. Hanes, named in the will, died previous to the testatrix and the question involved in the suit was as to his interest under the will.

Common Pleas Court held in the construction of the will that the interest which he would have taken had he survived the testatrix, would go one-half to the surviving brother, Perry Hanes, and one-half to the children of Henry Hanes, who died subsequent to the death of the testatrix.

The defendant, Perry Hanes, contended by his demurrer to the plaintiff's petition, and by an answer set up in the case, that there was an evident intention on the part of the testatrix to devise the real estate to her two brothers and the survivor of them.

The appellate court decided this was not the intention of the testatrix.

The higher court decided that therefore the trial court was right in holding that the estate in the property passed to Perry Hanes and to surviving children of Henry Hanes as decreed by Common Pleas Court.

Attorney Frank L. Johnson represented the plaintiffs with Charles L. Darlington acting as attorney for the defendants.

PRIZE WINNERS IN AD WRITING CONTEST ANNOUNCED BY JUDGES

Mildred Moon, 223 Chestnut St., Xenia, won first prize in the advertising writing contest conducted by the Xenia Retail Merchants' Association according to the report of the judges just made.

Although the contest closed April 10, judges were not able to make a report at the time scheduled for the announcement.

The contest was open to all public and parochial school children, who were invited to write 300 word advertisements on the subject "Why Trade in Xenia."

Originality of thought, clearness, clearness of expression, neatness and general arrangement were considered in awarding the prizes. The manuscripts submitted by the contestants were designated by numbers so that judges did not know names of the writers until the awards were made.

Mildred Moon will be presented with the first award of $20 in cash. The second prize of $10 goes to Melville Bartlett, Xenia, R. R. 4. Dartha Boatman, Central High School sophomore, was third prize winner of $5.

William Kennedy, 604 W. Second St., won fourth prize of $3 and William Neville, 103 Locust St., won the fifth prize of $2. CHURCH TO BORROW MONEY; TWO WIVES SEEKING DIVORCES

The Regular Baptist Church of Xenia, through its Board of Trustees, consisting of William Maxwell, L. A. Wagner, Frank Jacobs, William Hale and Harley Woolery, has made application in Common Pleas Court for authority to mortgage property and borrow $1,500 with which to liquidate the church debt and to make certain other improvements.

The church congregation recently voted to authorize the execution of a mortgage on church property according to the application, filed through Attorney C. W. Whitmer.

TWO ASK DIVORCE

Charges of extreme cruelty and gross neglect of duty form the basis of a suit for divorce filed in Common Pleas Court by Emma Hill against Edward Hill.

Plaintiff complains that her husband was gone for two years and that his whereabouts were unknown to her. During this time she received no support from him, she says. He returned a year ago and lived with her until about Christmas time in 1927, when he again deserted and they have been living apart ever since, the petition sets forth.

The defendant contributed some money toward her support until two weeks ago, when he notified her that the payments would be discontinued, plaintiff charges.

Plaintiff seeks to be decreed temporary and finally permanent alimony and a reasonable attorney fee.

They were married in April, 1923 at Chattanooga, Tenn. No children were born of the union.

Divorce is also asked in a suit filed by Margaret Stolzman against Oscar R. Stolzman, alleging gross neglect of duty for the last six

KONJOLA BRINGS NEW FEELING OF GLORIOUS HEALTH

"It Did More Than I Ever Expected", Says Uniontown Citizen

There is a great joy in living if you feel good all the time. Healthy persons are happy. Yet how many modern people are robbed of happiness, due to common health disorders. Many forms of suffering arise from a weak, unhealthy system. There has always been a need for a real scientific medicine—something more than a tonic—that will actually restore new energy to the body. Hence, the introduction of Konjola, a new medicine containing twenty-two juices of plants and herbs, combined with other well-known medicinal ingredients.

Thousands of men and women from all over the state of Ohio have publicly endorsed this compound and the Konjola Man at the Gallaher Drug Store, Xenia, is daily interviewing large crowds of people who come to hear his personal explanation of this medicine.

One of the latest to make a statement about Konjola is Mr. C. C. Hoover, R. F. D. No. 2, Uniontown, Ohio, (near Xenia).

"Konjola had helped so many of my friends that I felt I owed it to myself to give this medicine a trial", said Mr. Hoover. "It has benefited me in every way and now I feel better than I have for many months."

"My health had been going down so fast that it became a constant worry to me. I tried many things for relief without success that I was at loss to know what to do next. My stomach was in such a serious condition that I could hardly eat a thing without suffering intense misery. Food would form like a hard knot in my stomach and there would be a burning sensation, like fire, from my throat to the pit of my stomach. My system was full of bile on account of the sluggish condition of my liver. I was subject to dizzy spells and often spots would appear before my eyes. At times I was also troubled with rheumatism. Terrible pains would center in my shoulders and the joints all over my body would be stiff and sore. My legs would feel aching and weak and sometimes I couldn't stand on my feet."

"But Konjola has ended all this misery. I have just finished the third bottle of this medicine and it has made such a wonderful change in me that it is hard to realize that I was such a health wreck only a few weeks ago. It gave relief to my stomach almost immediately. My appetite increased within a few days and now I can eat anything I want. All the ugly symptoms I used to suffer after meals have disappeared. Since my liver is working regularly again, I am free of dizzy spells and those little spots no longer appear before my eyes. My rheumatism is gone entirely. I feel stronger in every way and a new feeling of health has come over my whole system. Yes, it did more for me than I ever expected and that is why I am glad to endorse this medicine."

The Konjola Man is at the Gallaher Drug Store, Xenia, where he is daily meeting the public and introducing and explaining the merits of this important remedy. Free samples given.

years. Plaintiff claims her husband would not support her. The couple was married December 6, 1906 at Xenia. No children were born of the marriage.

ORDER PARTITION MADE

Partition of real estate has been ordered in the case of John Hana-gan and others against Nellie Whaley and others in Common Pleas Court. T. C. Long, John Wright and James Crowl were appointed commissioners to appraise the estate.

SALE APPROVED

Sale of property to the plaintiff in the case of The Bowersville Bank against C. E. Hargrave has been confirmed in Common Pleas Court. The price bid for the premises was $5,000, which is insufficient to pay a mortgage held by the bank, the court found. The bank was ordered to pay the costs in the case, $118.70.

There is also no balance from the proceeds of the sale out of which to pay a mortgage set up in an answer and cross-petition filed by Alonzo Johnson, so the mortgage was ordered cancelled of record.

TWO WIN DIVORCES

Hallie Stevens has been awarded a divorce from Dale Stevens in Common Pleas Court on grounds of gross neglect of duty. Plaintiff was given custody of the minor child, Vivian Lucille. Ruth Isabelle Perrill has obtained a divorce from Charles Elson Perrill on similar grounds, and was decreed custody of the minor child, Gloria Ruth.

DISMISS CASE

Suit of Revell Hurley against Mabelle Harley has been ordered dismissed without record in Common Pleas Court.

DECISION OF COURT OVER WILL DISPUTE UPHELD ON APPEAL

Decision of Common Pleas Court in the partition suit of Laura B. Marshall and others against Perry Hanes and others was sustained by the Greene County Court of Appeals Saturday.

The action was brought to partition certain real estate which came to them, as alleged by the plaintiffs, from the estate of Mary Jane Hanes, who died testate and leaving a will which bequeathed "to my brothers John Hanes and Perry Hanes, share and share alike all of my property of every description whatsoever, real and personal." The brother John N. Hanes, named in the will, died previous to the testatrix and the question involved in the suit was as to his interest under the will.

Common Pleas Court held in the construction of the will that the interest which he would have taken had he survived the testatrix, would go one-half to the surviving brother, Perry Hanes, and one-half to the children of Henry Hanes, who died subsequent to the death of the testatrix.

The defendant, Perry Hanes, contended by his demurrer to the plaintiff's petition, and by an answer set up in the case, that there was an evident intention on the part of the testatrix to devise the real estate to her two brothers and the survivor of them.

The appellate court decided this was not the intention of the testatrix.

The higher court decided that therefore the trial court was right in holding that the estate in the property passed to Perry Hanes and to surviving children of Henry Hanes, as decreed by Common Pleas Court.

Attorney Frank L. Johnson represented the plaintiffs with Charles L. Darlington acting as attorney for the defendants.

Twenty cottages are rented at the resort. The hotel is managed this year by Mrs. W. C. Sutton and son, John Sutton reside during the summer at the resort and assist in its management.

PRIZE WINNERS IN AD WRITING CONTEST ANNOUNCED BY JUDGES

Mildred Moon, 223 Chestnut St., Xenia, won first prize in the advertising writing contest conducted by the Xenia Retail Merchants' Association according to the report of the judges just made.

Although the contest closed April 10, judges were not able to make a report at the time scheduled for the announcement.

The contest was open to all public and parochial school children, who were invited to write 300 word advertisements on the subject "Why Trade in Xenia."

Originality of thought, clearness, clearness of expression, neatness and general arrangement were considered in awarding the prizes. The manuscripts submitted by the contestants were designated by numbers so that judges did not know names of the writers until the awards were made.

As a result of winning first prize Mildred Moon will be presented with the first award of $20 in cash. The second prize of $10 goes to Melville Bartlett, Xenia, R. R. 4. Dartha Boatman, Central High School sophomore, was third prize winner of $5.

William Kennedy, 604 W. Second St., won fourth prize of $3 and William Neville, 103 Locust St., won the fifth prize of $2. Prizes of $1 each were awarded to Helen Downes, 22 Maple St.; Margaret McDonnell, 77 Walnut St., who made her advertisement in the form of a rhymed acoustic; Robert Killeen, 228 W. Second St.; Mary Ashbaugh, 157 Hill St.; Charlotte Haller, 328 E. Third St., and Catherine Osborn, 632 W. Second St.
